Hiroshima — 30-year-old memory of family tragedy

by STIRLING MORITA

About 8 a.m. Aug. 6, 1945, the B-29 bomber Enola Gay zeroed in on Hiroshima. Civil Defense sirens had signaled all clear. Sixteen-year-old Anna lay sick in bed, unable to attend school.

A white parachute blossomed from the superfortress, descending slowly on the major Japanese seaport. At exactly 8:15 a.m., there was a blinding flash. In an instant, Anna's friends and relatives were lying dead or badly injured, the city in ruins.

Anna, now Mrs. Sam Ito of Des Plaines, still wonders why she was spared the pain and agony suffered by more than 150,000 persons on that day.

All she knows is that she is still alive to tell her story 30 years after the first atomic holocaust.

SIXTEEN HOURS after the blast, President Harry S. Truman announced to the world that a nuclear bomb had been dropped on Hiroshima. It carried the power of more than 20,000 tons of TNT. The bomb was bewildering and beyond the comprehension of the people at that time.

Meanwhile, in Chicago, Sam Ito grimly heard the news. The American-born Japenese, who had returned to the United States before the war, waited for the release of the first photographs of the devastated city. He feared the worst. His parents, brother and sisters lived near a hilltop on the fringe of Hiroshima.

Before Col. Paul W. Tibbetts Jr.'s flight, Hiroshima had been untouched by the wrath of American bombers. Life in the city of about 245,000 proceeded as usual, despite radio warnings of approaching airplanes.

Mrs. Ito recalled, without bitterness, that two uncles and about half her classmates died in the diaster. Her father was badly burned, and her mother was exposed to radiation that possibly claimed her life.

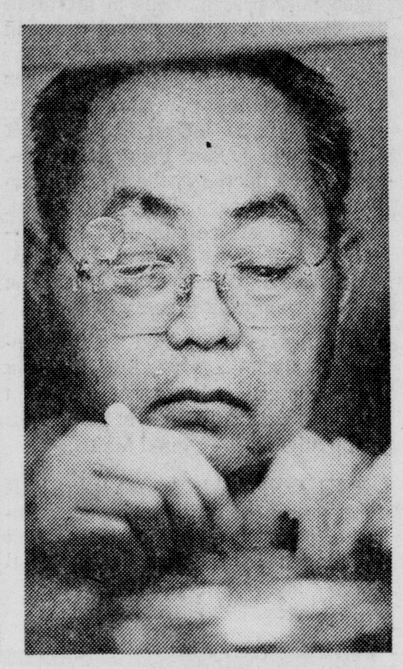
Although no exact statistics are available, it has been estimated about 72,000 people died in the blast.

"I WAS ONE of the lucky people," she said.

Her family lived in a two-story house about a mile and a half from the center of the blast. The bomb leveled about a five-square-mile area.

ANNA ITO

"It was early in the morning, after 8. My house was a two-story. I was sleeping in an American-style bed, because I was sick," she remembers.



SAM ITO

"I heard something like a thunderstorm and saw lightning. A couple of minutes and all the houses started to crash down," she said.

Ito, translating for his wife, said she was thrown from the bed and the mattress covered her, protecting her from the crumbling house.

"I heard my mother start calling me. I looked up. I didn't see any upstairs," Mrs. Ito said.

"WE WENT DOWN by the river and stayed there until 4 or 5," she added.

She could hear the cries for help from trapped and injured people. "People were dying all over the place," she recalled.

The family went upriver to her grandmother's house, which was not destroyed by the bomb.

Mrs. Ito's father watched the bomb drop as he stood in a field four miles away from the center of the blast. Because he was in the open, he suffered burns on his left side, but he survived. Her mother died of cancer 15 years ago. An autopsy was ordered, but Mrs. Ito never learned whether the cancer was attributable to the radiation.

Seventy-five of her classmates died in a factory, where they made clothing for soldiers.

Mrs. Ito said, "When something like that happens, nerves get numb. Here's one dead. Here's another dead. You don't have any feeling for it."

WHEN ITO FINALLY obtained a copy of Life magazine in 1945, he was relieved. A photograph of the city's ruins showed the Ito home was still standing. Unknown to him, one of his sisters was badly burned, but she lived.

THE AFTERMATH was a nightmare. Morphine was not used during an operation unless bones had to be severed. Mrs. Ito's father underwent surgery for his burns without the benefit of an anesthetic. "It was rough," she said.

After the war, Ito's mother met Anna in Hiroshima, and Anna became a picture bride — similar to mail-order brides of the Old West. She came to the United States and married Ito in 1949. They have operated Richert's Jewelry in downtown Des Plaines for the last 10 years.

They are not bitter about the bomb. Ito explained, "It was war, and in war, anything can happen."

Schools offset village hikes

Land tax bills dip 2nd year in a row

Real estate tax bills for Arlington Heights residents will decrease for the second straight year, County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper predicted Tuesday.

Reductions will vary from 2.5 to 2.2 per cent, Kusper said.

Local 1974 tax rates will:

- Decrease about 2.2 per cent for property owners in Arlington Heights Dist. 25. The total tax rate will be about $7.871 per $100 assessed valuation.
- Decrease about 2.41 per cent for property owners in Mount Prospect Dist. 57. The total tax rate will be about $7.596.
- Decrease about 2.49 per cent for property in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21. The tax rate will be about $8.080.

Increases in countywide rates and the Village of Arlington Heights tax rates were offset this year by reductions in school taxes and a 2.5 per cent drop in the state tax equalizer, a numerical factor used to equalize assessments throughout Illinois.

The Village of Arlington Heights levy increased about 8.6 cents to 87.2 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Real estate tax bills in 8 of 10 Northwest suburbs will decrease between .39 and 3.1 per cent this year. The largest drop will be in Elk Grove Village, about 3.13 per cent for property owners in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Elk Grove Park District.

MUNICIPAL TAXES in all Northwest suburbs, except Schaumburg where there is no village levy, increased this year. Residents of Mount

Village to retain appointed BOLI

The Village of Arlington Heights will retain its controversial, appointed Board of Local Improvements, despite the objections of James T. Ryan, village president, and two trustees.

The village board voted 5-3 Monday night to approve the recommendation of its community service committee that BOLI remain an appointed board whose members will serve a five-year term. They now are appointed for indefinite terms.

Ryan, who has argued since the winter election campaign that BOLI should be reconstituted as a subcommittee of the village board, said again Monday night there was no reason to

Plan commission favors stadium

by JOE SWICKARD

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission voted Tuesday night to recommend approval of a professional football stadium at Arlington Park Race Track.

The 6-to-4 vote in favor of the stadium came after almost eight hours of hearings spanning two nights. The recommendation will be sent to the village board for final consideration and action.

The commission voted recommendation of the special use permit for the 76,000 seat stadium that would be the new home of the Chicago Bears. The commission asked that the final details of construction and layout of the stadium be referred to them for further study.

Several riders were attached to the commission's approval. The parking facilities, which would be operated by Madison Square Garden Corp., would be available for use by the stadium should the property be sold. A two-hour period would be required between the scheduling of the start of events at the stadium and the last race at the track to ease traffic tie-ups.

THE APPROVAL by the commissioners covered only the stadium and did not touch upon other aspects of Madison Square Garden's plans for developing the 244-acre site with apartments, office and light industrial buildings.

Commissioners voting against the stadium were Lewis O'Donnell, the most vocal critic of the project on the commission, Katy Graham, William Hannum and chairman Leo Mueller.

Voting in favor of the stadium were Michael Silverman, George Grulke, Norman Breyer, Philip Lamell, Wayne Walter and Donald Storino.

About 50 residents attended the special continued hearing. The hearing last week was filled with more than

Harper is more than just a small junior college

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Harper College was created by a referendum in 1965. Ten years later, the college is planning a second campus. In this, the first of a four-part series, those connected with the college's founding assess what it has accomplished in its first decade.)

by WANDALYN RICE

The Northwest suburbs' junior college was going to be a small school, with 2,200 students by 1970, a campus that would cost just over $7 million and programs aimed mainly at students who were just graduating from high school.

When it opens for classes this fall, William Rainey Harper College, Palatine, expects to have more than 14,500 students and will be preparing to ask voters to authorize about $7 million in bonds just to pay for completion of the present campus. Within the foreseeable future, college officials expect to need a second campus at an initial cost of about $5 million.

The students at Harper have an average age of 27, meaning that large numbers of them are substantially older than the 18-and 19-year-olds just beginning their college careers.

WILLARD BROWN SR. was a member of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education in 1965 when voters gave their approval for the new school. He was on the steering committee that guided the referendum.

"We were thinking of a much smaller school, a much smaller campus," he says, recalling those days. "Gradually after the college started we awakened to the fact that this was going to be much bigger than anybody had conceived."

ROBERT LAHTI was 35 years old and had been president of a junior college in Michigan when he accepted the job as president of Harper College. He expected the college to exceed enrollment expectations. He says now, "I thought we would reach 10,000 students someday. I could not have guessed that after 10 years we would be talking about 20,000."

THE STORY of Harper College after 10 years is one of surprising growth. Harper is one of the the 10 largest institutions of higher education in Illinois — on the same list as the University of Illinois. As it has grown it has changed from a "junior" college to a community college, serving senior citizens, housewifes and businessmen as well as the "traditional" 18-year-old college student.

In the process, the college has pleased many and disappointed some. It has succeeded in offering high-quality nursing, dental hygiene and standard academic programs while being criticized by others for shortcomings ranging from "extravagance" to not offering enough variety of courses.

Somewhere along the line it stopped being a "new" school and became a well-established institution.

Those who were present "at the creation," whether as members of the original referendum steering committee, the original college board of trustees or on the original faculty which met students in 1967, give the college generally high marks for accomplishment, while at the same time

Macdonald won't seek state No. 2 post

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, has informed Republican women seeking a female candidate for lieutenant governor in the 1976 elections that she will not seek the office. Her formal withdrawal, while not unexpected, seemed to leave the field open to State Rep. Celeste M. Stiehl, R-Belleville, for the support of Republican women determined to win party backing for one of their number for a state office. Mrs. Macdonald acknowledged that the probably nomination of a Republican from the Chicago area for the office of governor probably dictates the selection of a Downstate candidate for the second spot on the state ticket. The Illinois Republican Women's Federation, led by Hope McCormack, national Republican committeewoman, is expected to announce its endorsement of Mrs. Stiehl soon.

Guttilla, now without a position in the village administration, is requesting that the board which hired him take action on his behalf.

Court may OK revamp for SAGR

A measure allowing SAGR Inc., of Rolling Meadows to continue operation but requiring correction of alleged misrepresentations in literature is expected to win approval today in federal court.

A consent decree setting guidelines for future company business practices will be offered before U.S. District Court Judge J. Sam Perry at 10 a.m. today. The decree is the result of negotiations between U.S. Jutice Dept. and Postal Service attorneys and lawyers for Herbert L. and Linda R. Hoffman, Palatine owners of the fledgling nonprofit grocery firm.

The Justice Dept. filed a civil complaint July 15 against SAGR, citing three alleged misrepresentations in mailings the firm had sent to persons living all over the United States.

THE COMPLAINT charged SAGR misrepresented its address, the number of persons to whom it had mailed solicitation letters and the potential savings from shopping in a non-profit grocery store.

SAGR began operations in early June, recruiting employe investors and grocery chain members in solicitation letters. Inquiries about the firm's offer of $191,000 annual earnings on $1,000 annual investments prompted a investigation by The Herald. SAGR has no known operating grocery stores. Although it listed an address at 3301 Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows, it had no ownership or rental interest in the property.

SAGR was banned under a temporary injunction from operating in Ohio, on charges it violates that state's anti-pyramid law. Illinois has put the firm on notice it violates state laws requiring registry of corporations. Two other states have the company under study.

The consent decree would permit SAGR to collect mail impounded since July 15, and resume operating under the new guidelines.

Japan releases 5 radicals

Terrorists free 9 hostages, retain 41

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI) — Japanese Red Army gunmen freed nine of their hostages Wednesday and continued negotiating on release of 41 other hostages still held under the threat of death in the U.S. Embassy. But the guerrillas asked two Malaysian officials and two Japanese diplomats to join them in a flight out of the country.

They said Japanese Ambassador Michiaki Suma and another Japanese diplomat were named by the guerrillas along with Home Affairs Ministry Director Gen. Osman Cassim and Home Affairs Ministry official Azizan Hussein.

Government sources said the guerrillas would take at least 14 male hostages with them on the ride to the airport for a flight to the Middle East.

The first captive to be freed was Mrs. S. C. Choo, a 63-year-old Malaysian who was carried from the embassy building on a stretcher and was driven away in an ambulance. A police official said Mrs. Choo suffered from a weak heart.

She was followed by Mrs. Gerald Lancaster, 33, and her three sons, Edwin, 11, Rodney, 9, and Dick, 8, Australian citizens living in Malaysia.

An American citizen, Mrs. Susan Chan, 27, and her 5-year-old daughter Dianne also were freed.

Officials identified the others released as Malaysians Chong SiSi, 13, and Mrs. Ng Wai Han. All the hostages freed, except Mrs. Choo, walked from the building under heavy police escort and were driven away in official cars. Reporters were not allowed to speak to them.

Negotiations to release the hostages had appeared stalemated earlier, when a top Malaysian police official said the hooded gunmen had issued "certain new conditions" before the talks continued.

Informed sources said the terrorists had increased their demands to include "a very large amount of money" from the U.S., Malaysian, Japanese and Swedish governments, whose nationals they held captive.

The hostages included U.S. Consul General Robert Stebbins, 42, and Swedish Charge d'Affaires Frederick Bergenstrahle, 48. All the captives, including four other Americans, were reported in good condition.

The terrorists wounded a Malaysian police constable and a building guard as they shot their way Monday into the U.S. consular offices in the 12-story building that also houses the Canadian, Japanese and Swedish embassies.

The guerrillas threatened to kill the hostages and blow up the building unless their demands were met.

Reuben Monson, U.S. embassy information officer, said the guerrillas were in telephone contact with their comrades aboard the plane.

Although officials hoped the plane and crew could receive a minimum 12-hour layover in Kuala Lumpur after the 6½-hour flight from Tokyo, a backup crew was aboard the DC8 should the guerrillas reject the request.

When negotiations dragged, airport officials said most of the Japanese officials and plane crewmen left the plane and went to a downtown hotel to get some sleep, leaving the five Red Army members and a police guard aboard the plane.

Several hundred airport workers and travelers caught by the airport shutdown lined windows inside the heavily guarded terminal and watched Ambassador Suma and other Japanese officials board the plane with two Malaysian policemen.

Outside the embassy downtown, crowds of curious spectators grew larger as night fell, lining roads behind police barricades which kept them about 300 yards away from the embassy building.

U.S. to keep hand in Asia, Ford tells Miki

President Ford opened two days of meetings with Japan's Prime Minister Takeo Miki Tuesday with a pledge that the United States will continue a constructive role in Asia despite its setbacks in Indochina. Miki, in turn, apologized for the attack by Japanese terrorists on the U.S. embassy in Kuala Lumpur, Maylasia. Ford will leave Sunday for a two-week "working vacation" in Vail, Colo., and take time out for several side trips that could boost his 1976 candidacy and focus attention on U.S. energy needs.

Some $40,000 in jewels, furs and other valuables were untouched.

Israelis kill 15 Lebanese in biggest attack in month

by United Press International

Israeli warplanes, gunboats, seaborn commandos and artillery blasted targets near the port of Tyre in southern Lebanon Tuesday in the heaviest cross-border strikes in nearly a month. Beirut reports said at least 15 persons, including four Lebanese army officers, were killed and 28 wounded.

The Israeli military command said the attacks were directed against two Arab guerrilla bases outside Tyre, 13 miles north of the border. Troops landed from gunboats to strike the first and jet planes attacked the second in afternoon raids.

King Hussein of Jordan warned Tuesday of the likelihood of another Middle East war into which his kingdom would be drawn and said he would not hesitate to ask the Soviet Union for weapons if the United States turns down his request for American Hawk missiles.

He said Jordan would not accept any cutback, "not even of one single missile."

Hussein, however, denied reports he was planning to go to Moscow in the near future in search of arms aid, indicating he will try to buy the weapons he wants from the West before turning to the East.

"There are no plans at this time for a trip to Moscow," he said.

Hussein spoke of his fears of a fifth Middle East war, of his conviction that Jordan would be drawn into it and of his efforts to arm his kingdom for the "fresh disaster" he foresees if peace efforts fail.

A Beirut military spokesman said Israeli warplanes attacked a number of Palestinian refugee camps after overnight sea and artillery attacks on civilian targets and a Lebanese army barracks near Tyre.

Four Lebanese army officers were killed and a fifth wounded in the shelling of the barracks and five Palestinian guerrillas died in the attacks on the nearby refugee camp of Al Buss, Lebanese military and Palestinian guerrilla spokesmen said.

A Palestinian guerrilla spokesman said the air attack against the Bourgouliyeh camp killed six civilians, including three children, and wounded 28 other persons, mostly women and children. He said 50 houses in the camp were destroyed.

Lebanese anti-aircraft gunners engaged the invading Israeli warplanes which pounded the camps for 20 minutes, the Lebanese military spokesman said, but "details on damages or casualties are not yet available."

Steel costs to rise 9%; cars up $34

by United Press International

Armco Steel Corp., the country's fifth-largest steel producer, Tuesday announced a 9 per cent price increase for its sheet and flat rolled steel products — the first increase in the industry since July 1974.

It said the hike would boost the cost of steel used in a medium-sized car by about $34, and about $2.12 for steel needed in a 16-cubic-foot refrigerator.

The company said its production costs had risen 17.4 per cent, or $45 a ton, since its last increase and the new prices were "long overdue."

Armco Chairman William Verity told a news conference he did not know what the rest of the industry would do, but suspected U. S. Steel is in the same position as Armco.

Armco is No. 5 in terms of production and No. 3 in sales. Other large steel companies, including U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and National, declined comment.

$200,000 offered in hunt for Hoffa; clues turn up

DETROIT (UPI) — The family of James R. Hoffa Tuesday offered a $200,000 reward for information leading to the whereabouts of the fallen Teamsters czar who has been missing since last Wednesday.

The reward was offered through Hoffa's son, Detroit attorney James P. Hoffa.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported Hoffa's family had found and turned over "the hottest clues yet" — Hoffa's private calendar listing his private meetings over the past two weeks and "notes on secret meetings Hoffa held or planned to hold throughout the country."

The Sun-Times said the notes included the names of Teamster leaders, politicians and mafia mobsters with whom Hoffa was in contact.

The conviction spread Tuesday among investigators that Hoffa is dead, perhaps at the hands of "old timer" friends who betrayed his trust.

The FBI search for clues to Hoffa's disappearance spread throughout the country and there were reports that the Mafia was conducting its own underworld investigation.

The Detroit News quoted a federal source as saying the FBI "is acting on the assumption" that Hoffa is dead. It's very likely we'll never find his body. This is the type of case that we never find a solution to."

An added mystery was the disappearance of the man Hoffa called his adopted son, Charles L. "Chucki" O'Brien. O'Brien, a Teamsters organizer, was brought up in Hoffa's home and regarded him as "the only father I ever knew."

He has not been seen for four days and has not appeared at the Lake Orion, Mich., summer cottage where Hoffa's wife, son and daughter are keeping their vigil along with a move-in contingent of FBI agents.

Another of the three men Hoffa planned to meet Wednesday was a longtime crony and jailmate at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison, Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano — and reports circulated Tuesday that Tony Pro had threatened to kill Hoffa or kidnap his beloved grandchildren if the "little fellow" persisted in his battle to regain control of the Teamsters in next year's election.

The main source of the reports was Daniel Sullivan, a former Teamsters official, as is Provenzano. Sullivan, now a Philadelphia truck leaser, was quoted as saying Hoffa told him of the threats more than a year ago. Provenzano and Hoffa were reported on the outs since Tony Pro lined up with Teamsters Pres. Frank Fitzsimmons in the Teamsters power struggle.

ANTHONY PROVENZANO explains that he is not in the Mafia as he stands outside his home in Hallandale, Fla. Provenzano is said to have had a luncheon engagement with James Hoffa the day Hoffa was reported missing.

Unit to subpoena CIA document

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House intelligence committee voted unanimously Tuesday to subpoena the top-secret document which established the National Security Agency to monitor foreign communications and break codes.

Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., chairman of the panel, said "it seems incredible" that Congress doesn't know the legal authorization under which NSA was created by the National Security Council in 1952.

"Huge sums are going into this agency and we can't get a piece of paper," Pike said at a public session at which Albert C. Hall, Assistant Sec. of Defense for Intelligence, was testifying.

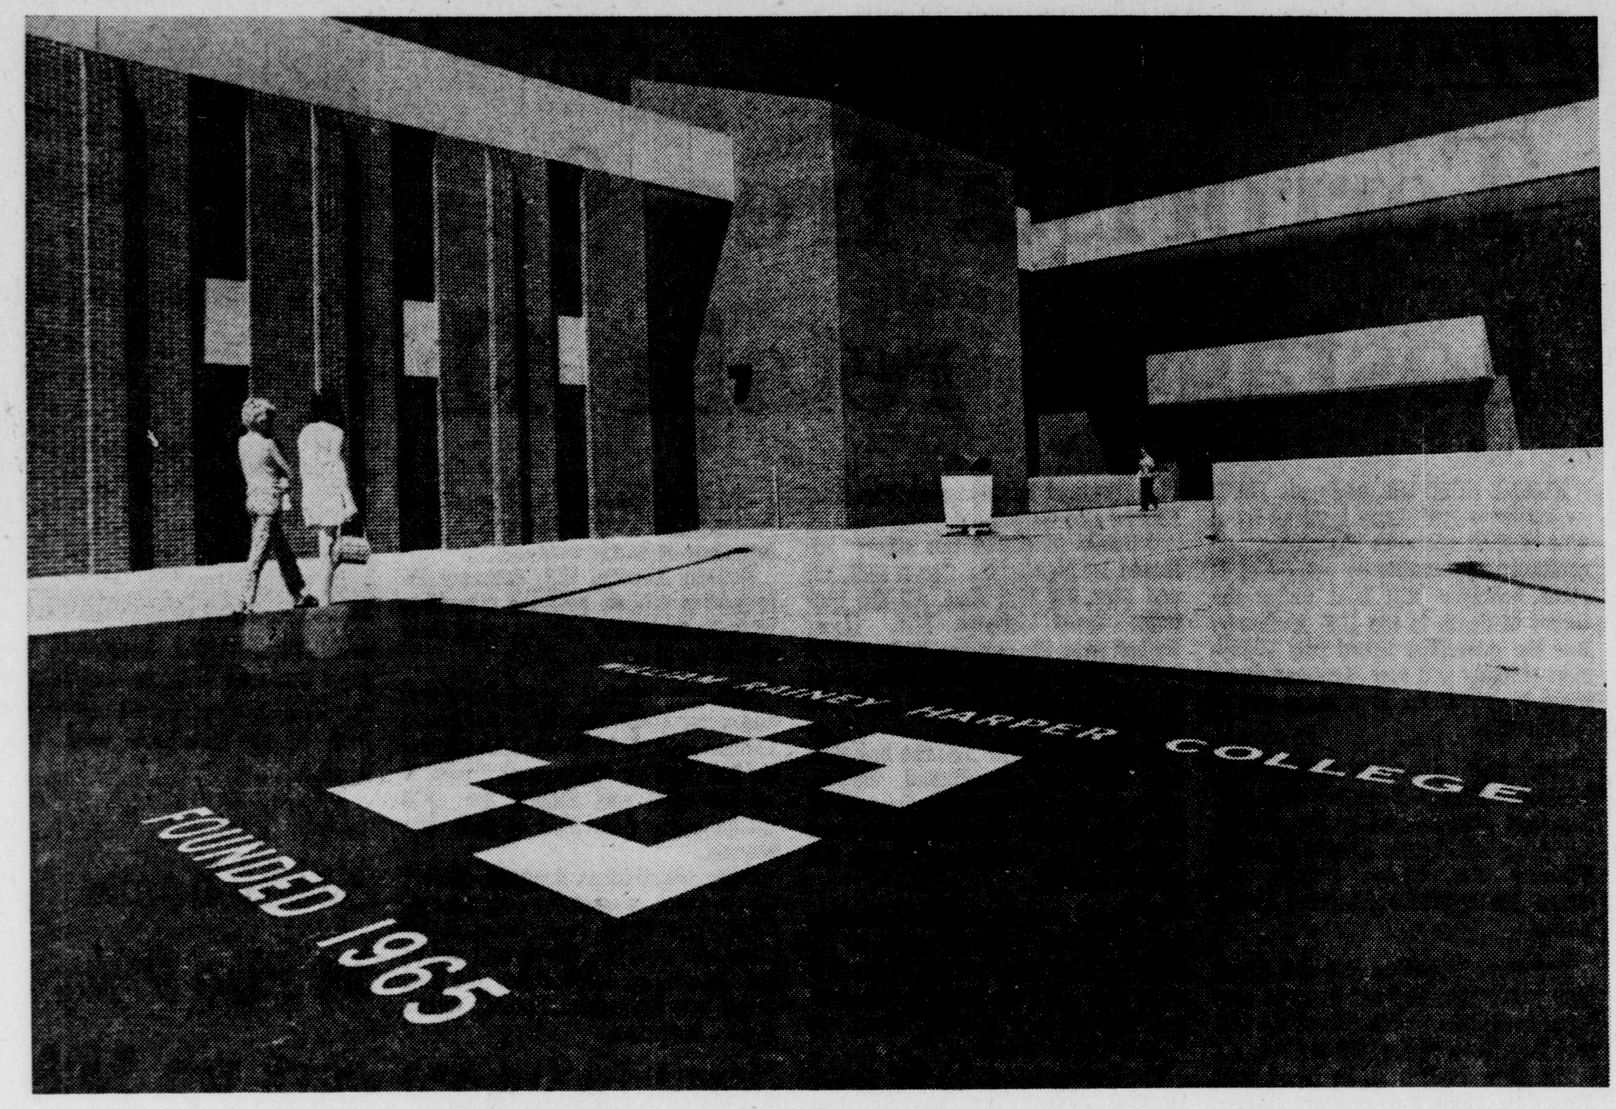
"Why didn't you bring it with you?" Pike asked Hall of the NSA document.

""I need clearance," Hall answered. "It has secret material in it."

Pike told Hall, "We keep hearing this song that 'we want to cooperate' yet we can't get information." The committee followed Pike's lead with an 11-to-0 vote to subpoena the document.

The panel also voted to subpoena a 1970 report by a special commission on military intelligence operations, which has never been made public.

The Senate intelligence committee also met in closed session Tuesday to hear testimony from Gen. Daniel Graham, head of the Defense Intelligence Agency, and other present and former officials of that agency, but nothing was divulged of the meeting.



"WILLIAM RAINEY HARPER College — Founded 1965" is how the marker in front of A Building at the college's Palatine campus reads. The college was created in March 1965 through a referendum, the college's first board of trustees was elected the following month and classes started in 1967.

10 years of surprising growth

noting some disappointments.

FOR MEMBERS of the steering committee, the college has not only grown rapidly, it has grown away from them. Many members of the original committee say they are unhappy that they have not remained close to the college.

"We worked our tails off, but once that referendum was passed, it seemed as though the steering committee was shoved off to the side," says Frank Smith, who was president of the High Shool Dist. 214 board and one of Dist. 214's representatives on the committee. "We weren't even invited to the opening of the school."

Even so, Smith and other members of the steering committee say they are generally pleased with what they hear about Harper. Donald Truitt, who was a member of the Dist. 211 board and serves on the State Board of Education, says, "I think the thing that pleases me most is that it is there. I think the community is causing to happen what it wants in a school."

MEMBERS OF the original Harper board also are pleased with the way the college has turned out and are willing to take some of the credit. "If there is any excellence, I think it was built into the system originally," attorney James Hamill who left the board in 1971, says. "We were very conscious that we didn't want a second-class school."

At the same time, however, former board members are quick to give credit to the Northwest suburbs for what the school became. "If you started with an understanding of this kind of community, then you knew all of the things that would lead to excellence were there," Richard Johnson, who left the board in 1972, says. "If we couldn't produce the best community college in the United States, there was something wrong with the college, not the community."

THIRTY-TWO OF the 50 original faculty members are still teaching at the school, and though relations between the faculty, administration and board have been strained at times, many teachers are quick to express their pride in the school.

"I really love this place," says Thomas McCabe, math professor and leader of the faculty's salary negotiating team for several years. "I've become a critic of Harper in the same way I fix up my house — I want it to be better."

Robert Powell, an English teacher and president of the Harper faculty senate, echoes those sentiments, saying, "Harper has a splendid reputation. I see it all over the state."

WHEN THE discussion turns to the problems facing the school and the disappointments those involved in the founding have, there is surprising agreement. Former board members, members of the steering committee and faculty members almost unanimously cite the "lack of facilities" as their biggest disappointment in the school.

The fact is that even though enrollment is pushing the upper limit which was expected for the college, the campus plan is just 60 per cent complete, primarily because of delays in state funding. The college is short of classroom space, does not have an auditorium and lost the converted horse barn, which served as a fieldhouse, to a fire in 1973.

"We need some all-purpose classroom buildings," McCabe says. "We have six buildings and very few general classrooms. We need more flexibility. We need a physical education facility because when students are coming from places like (High School) Dist. 214 and 211, you have to have comparable facilities. We need a theater. The facilities here are ridiculous."

GERALD MCELROY, former superintendent of High School Dist. 211 and member of the steering committee, says, "I was pleased when they had the fire (which destroyed the fieldhouse) because I thought that would mean the college would get a suitable building."

Other criticisms of the college, though by no means unanimous, involve other issues.

Erie Jones, a member of the steering committee and now head of the state Civil Defense system, says, "The college does not respond to my aspirations for vocational courses. They have the glamour course (like nursing), but I was hoping they would offer vocational programs that would make parents believe vocational education wasn't just for their neighbor's child."

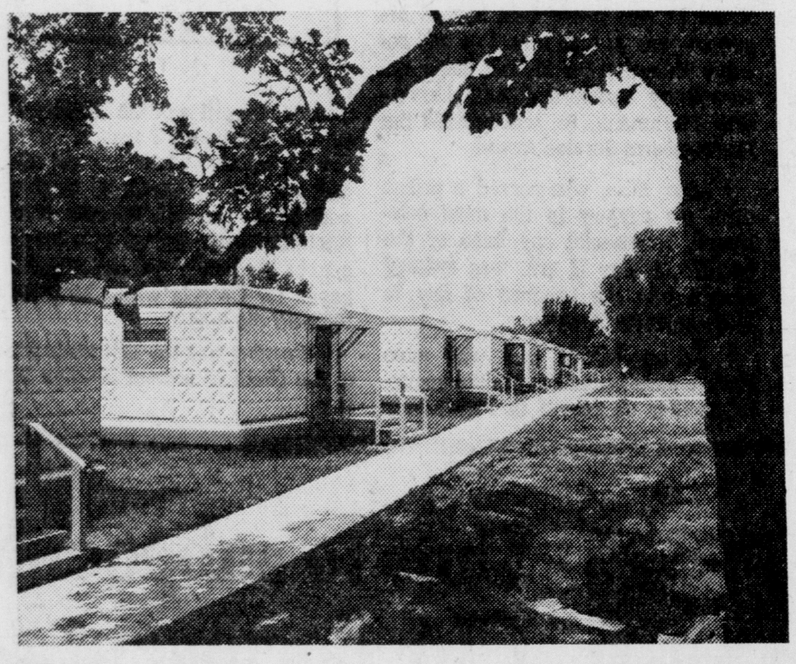
Eugenia Chapman, now a Democratic state representative from Arlington Heights, a member of the steering committee when she was on the Dist. 214 board, says, "The only thing about Harper that disappoints me is that for an institution that is doing so beautifully in meeting the needs of the community, it hasn't done a better job on faculty, administration and board relationships. I'm concerned about the face they show to the community."

AMONG THE things that affect the "face" the college shows the community are periodic conflicts between the faculty administration and board over such things as grievance policies, salary contracts and other issues. The facility will vote whether to join a union this fall.

In addition, the Harper board has become embroiled in almost annual disputes about the legality of some of its closed meetings. The most recent flare-up on that issue came last spring when board member Shirley Munson said she was afraid a closed board meeting might cross the line between what can be discussed legally behind closed doors.

That issue was resolved when Mrs. Munson said she was satisfied that the subjects for discussion were allowed by law. Shortly thereafter, immediately following the board election, Mrs. Munson was elected chairman, a move many observers felt would be the first step toward resolving the closed meeting problem.

Tomorrow: A look at the man who has run the college for 10 years.)



ORIGINAL HARPER College student lounge, bookstore and faculty offices were housed in eight mobile classrooms on the campus of Elk Grove High School, Elk Grove Village. The college held classes at Elk Grove and later at Forest View high schools while construction on the Palatine campus was under way. The college campus was finished in 1969.

Druggists object to fees for aid prescriptions

Most Northwest suburban pharmacists will continue to accept welfare prescriptions despite new state-ordered reductions in fees, but a number have voiced objections to the regulations.

"The state has taken an action I feel is very unjust," said Micheal Canata, a Niles Pharmacist and president of the Northwest Suburban Pharmaceutical Council. "When everyone else's fees have been increased, they have not increased but reduced our fees."

The new regulations call for a flat $1.75 fee above cost per prescription, while previously druggists received an average payment of $2.12 above Costs.

THE NEW SYSTEM took effect last Friday, but Alan Granat, acting executive director of the Illinois Pharmaceutical Assn., said Monday the organization is suing the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid to seek higher fees.

Granat said the new fees "have not been set at a level taking into account the realities of the retail pharmacy business."

Large numbers of pharmacists throughout Illinois have indicated they will stop accepting Medicaid prescriptions in protest of the regulations set forth by the public aid department.

Granat said most of the pharmacists he has talked to who will boycott the measure are from Chicago and downstate Illinois.

THE IMPACT of the regulation probably will vary in the Northwest suburbs, Granat said but he added area druggists won't be hit as hard in the pocketbook as pharmacists in some areas of Chicago where larger numbers of welfare recipients live.

Granat said, however, he expects sagging profits because his business, Niles Drugs, 8001 Milwaukee Ave., fills Medicaid prescriptions for a nursing home.

"Some (area pharmacists) do a lot of nursing home business, and they are affected," he said.

Several area pharmacists said, although they object to the ruling, they will continue to fill welfare prescriptions out of a "moral obligation."

"THE PROBLEM will be in any prescription over $6 or $7," said Micheal Raznak, pharmicist at Muench Drug store, 688 Lee St. Des Plaines. "I'd be better off putting the money in the bank rather than filling prescriptions."

He said, however, he has a number of Medicaid customers "who have nowhere else to go, and I could not in good conscience not fill them."

Marty Taxe, of Northgate Drugs, Arlington Heights, said he has talked to some druggists who may boycott the measure, but said he also feels morally bound to accept Medicaid business. "You can't refuse to fill a prescription and make the patient suffer."

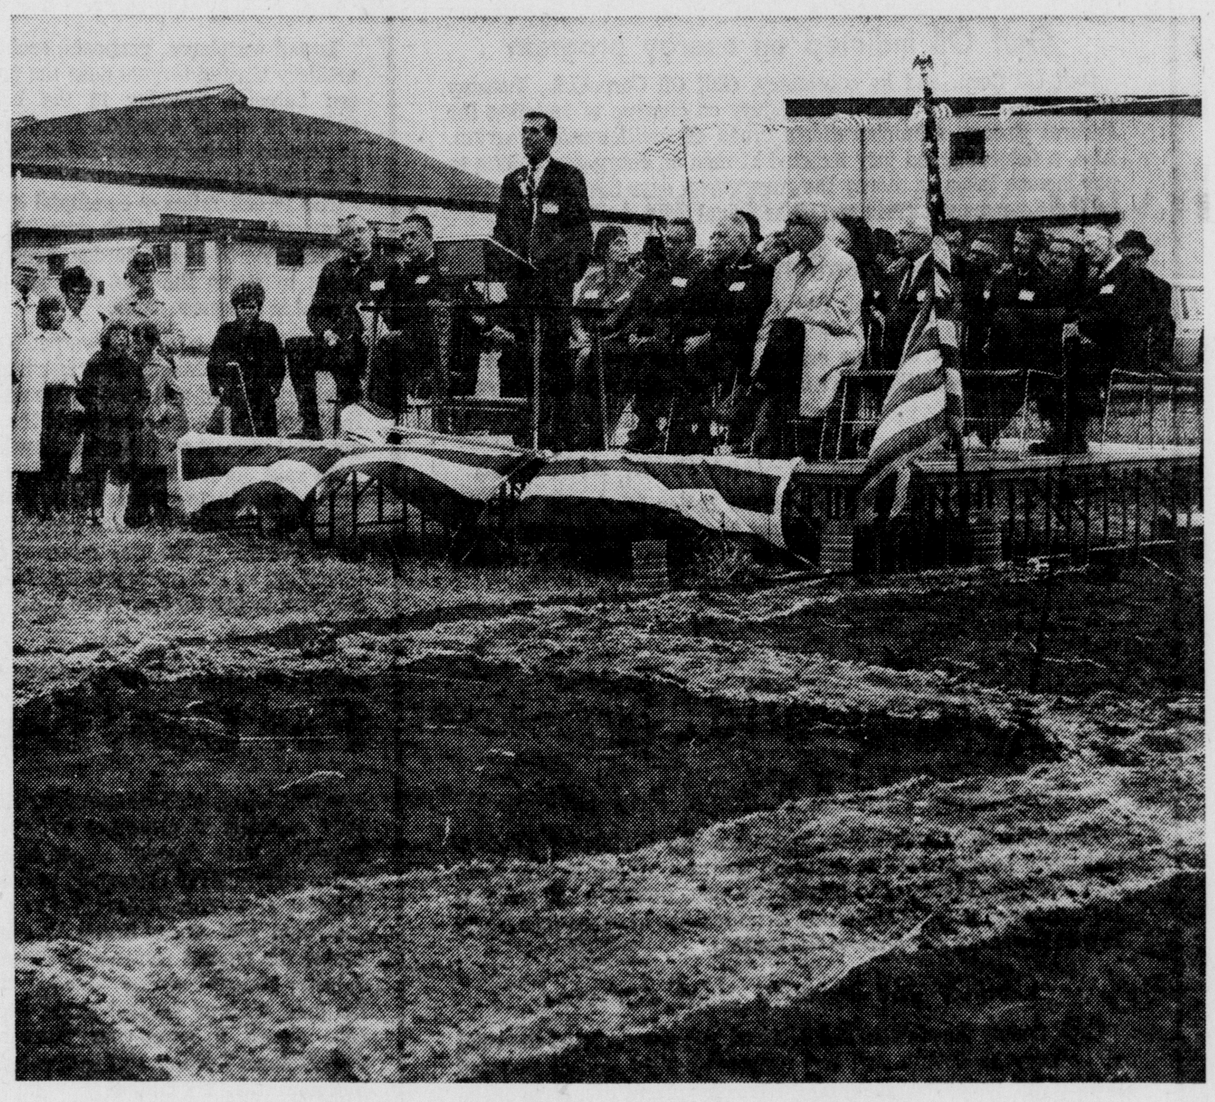
Taxe said he will not be significantly affected by drops in fees but expressed concern about possible future "third party programs" that may cause greater drops in profits for pharmacists.

DONALD SOSTOCK of Des Plaines Pharmacy-Medicaid, 1188 Lee St., said he will continue to fill Medicaid prescriptions until "the cost reaches the point where I'm not making a profit.

"When the cost starts approaching $5 and $10, you might as well be selling a bottle of milk," he said.

Sostock said he feels sorry for druggists in other areas who do large amounts of welfare business: "They're going to get killed."

Other druggists who said they do little or no Medicaid business expressed little concern over fee reductions, although they objected to the regulation.



HARPER COLEGE groundbreaking in 1967 involved a speech by then U. S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld, now chief of staff for President Gerald Ford. Other dignitaries in the front row are Harper Pres. Robert Lahti (far left), John Haas, Mount Prospect attorney and first president of the Harper board, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, State Sen. David Regner, Willard Brown Sr., a member of the steering committee which worked on the Harper referendum, and State Sen. John Graham.

BOLI retained, Ryan, 2 trustees protest issue

"insulate" citizens from their elected officials by requiring them to first meet with an appointed board on special assessment projects.

THE COMMUNITY services committee "did not go far enough" in its attempt to reform BOLI and the special assessment process.

Trustees Frank Palmatier and David Griffin joined Ryan in voting against an appointed BOLI.

Palmatier said he would support an appointed board only if BOLI agreed to get village board approval of its special assessment projects in advance.

But Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said that preliminary village board approval of a project would deviate from the very strict special assessment procedures outlined for BOLI by the state statutes. This variation could jeopardize the success of BOLI projects when they are settled in court, Siegel said.

PALMATIER SAID the village board needed to be consulted on special assessment plans because at times in the past, BOLI violated village board policies and priorities. For example, he said BOLI violated a policy against having more than one special assessment against any part of the town at one time.

Trustees who voted to retain the appointed board, Alice Harms, August Bettman, Robert Miller, Richard Durava and Madeline Schroeder, said they agreed with the community services committee recommendation that the village board's exclusive right to accept or reject any special assessment project was sufficient control.

The committee's suggestion that BOLI and the village board meet quarterly to discuss problems and policy was rejected. An alternative proposal that an annual meeting be held was also voted down.

Stadium rep and official clash at meet

JEAN HANLON

An attorney for Madison Square Garden Corp. said Tuesday that threats to eject him from an Environmental Control Commission hearing were "unnecessary."

ECC chairman Jean Hanlon clashed with attorney LeMoine Stitt during Monday night's hearing on the proposed development at Arlington Park Race Track. Mrs. Hanlon said she had a uniformed policeman waiting to remove Stitt or any other spectators from the room if they "were not able to conduct themselves with decorum."

"I did not like counsel's (attorneys for Madison Square Garden) tactics of raising their voices and referring to us as a circus. I don't feel people should be attacked when they are questioning somebody," she said.

Mrs. Hanlon said it is the chairman's "responsibility to maintain order — I just felt their conduct was out of order."

"You don't just stand there and ridicule somebody and indicate they're a bunch of nitwits. That's not the way to go about it," she said.

Stitt said he saw "no need" for Mrs. Hanlon's threat to eject him from the hearing.

"I just wanted my objection noted about a newspaper article being used as evidence. I don't know what she's making a stink about," he said.

Halas vows 'new' Bears in stadium

by KURT BAER

Papa Bear George Halas was among friends in Arlington Heights Tuesday when he and other Chicago Bears executives appeared before 175 area residents at a sports luncheon hosted by the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce.

The audience applauded Halas and his promises to improve the Chicago Bears, and bring the team to play in a new stadium at Arlington Park Race Track.

"I hope and pray that 1977 will find the Bears contending for a title in a new stadium here in Arlington Heights," he said.

He also took note of opposition to village financing for the stadium by suggesting that "a few of the people here probably could overcome those dissidents."

AFTER A COLOR film on the Bears' plans to rebuild as a team, George Halas Jr., president of the Chicago Bears, answered questions from the audience.

"Neither Madison Square Garden or the Chicago Bears feel it is within their purview to suggest how the stadium should be financed," he said when asked about the village board's unanimous rejection Monday night of general obligation bonds for the stadium.

"Touche Ross independently used general obligation bonds (in its feasibility report for Madison Square Garden) because this is the maximum way to generate revenue for Arlington Heights," he said.

Revenue bonds, because of their higher interest rate, "will significantly cut down any surplus" money to the village from the stadium, Halas Jr. said.

He repeated the Bears' pledge to come to Arlington Heights only if the village wants the team, and if the stadium can be built without costing the taxpayers money. The stadium proposal is a "big, big step for the village," Halas Jr. said, adding that he understands the apprehensions of some village trustees and Arlington Heights residents.

IF THE STADIUM is ultimately rejected, he said the Bears will leave having "enjoyed the exposure. We only want to be in Arlington Heights if Arlington Heights wants the Chicago Bears," he said.

Halas Jr. said that he doubted the Bears and Madison Square Garden Corp. could afford to borrow privately the $30 million it will take to build the stadium.

As private borrowers, they would have to pay 2 to 3 per cent more interest than the village, and on a loan of $30 million for 35 years that difference amounts to millions of dollars, he said.

The $30 to $31 million total cost of the stadium project was termed "totally realistic" by Halas Jr. The cost of actually building the stadium itself will be under $23 million, he said. Firm construction bids will be announced soon.

A domed stadium was not considered, he said, because the Bears and Madison Square Garden do not believe they could promote enough events to pay the higher cost of an

Prospect parks annex 7 homes

The Prospect Heights Park District annexed seven houses on Center Lane in unincorporated Wheeling Township Tuesday night.

The annexations, all voluntary, were sought by the homeowners because they were about to be annexed involuntarily by the Arlington Heights Park District. The homeowners, led by James Kirth, 1228 Center Ln., said they preferred to be in the Prospect Heights district through their annexation petitions.

Kirth said one of his reasons for wanting to be in the Prospect Heights Park District was the closeness of that district's facilities and the lack of Arlington Heights Park District facilities near his home. He said he did not want to pay taxes to the Arlington Heights Park District and probably end up paying non-resident fees to participate in the closer Prospect Heights park activities.

Max Lyle, Prospect Heights park board president, has estimated that the homeowners will probably have to pay higher taxes to belong to his district.

THE ARLINGTON Heights Park District annexations in the Center Lane area are set for Aug. 12 and will continue — minus the seven homes annexed Tuesday by Prospect Heights Park District. That annexation will include two residences at 1313 Rand Rd., owned by Hugo F. and Roy H. Green, which had petitioned to join the Prospect Heights Park District but were not contiguous to the district and therefore not annexed.

Angelo Capulli, superintendent of building and grounds for the Arlington Heights Park District, attended Tuesday's special Prospect Heights Park District meeting. He said his board's annexation map would merely be redrawn to delete the seven properties annexed.

Those annexed, in addition to Kirth, were Alfred E. Hembd, 1202 Center Ln.; Driscoll P. Drew, 1210 Center Ln.; Ernest H. Bouchard, 1218 Center Ln.; Edward Luebbers, 1227 Center Ln.; Marcel Esquera, 1225 Center Ln.; and Robert Horner, 1229 Center Ln.

The annexation papers are to be filed today with the circuit court.

Vandalism up 11%, Ryan urges crackdown

James T. Ryan, Arlington Heights village president, has announced a crackdown on vandalism in the village, which currently is running 11 per cent ahead of last year.

Ryan said village officials have contacted Circuit Court Judge Anthony J. Scotillo and the chief state's attorney for the second municipal district, Sam Berkley, to request that vandalism cases be prosecuted vigorously.

Police department statistics show there have been 392 reported acts of vandalism since Jan. 1 — 11 per cent more than the same period last year.

Acts of vandalism include 184 broken windows, two tire slashings, 13 egg-throwing incidents and destruction of lawns.

"I am sick and tired of seeing residents' homes and lawns vandalized by juveniles," Ryan said. "The additional damage done by these lawbreakers to our public facilities is absolutely appalling and a complete and utter waste of the taxpayers' money," he said.

"We do not and will not consider acts of vandalism to be harmless pranks, and the village will seek maximum penalties, including jail sentences, for criminal damage to property," he added.

Under the state's criminal code, malicious damage to property can carry a 1 to 3-year term of imprisonment and/or a fine of up to $500, plus restitution for damages.

Ryan said he was announcing the crackdown so that persons who continue to vandalize property are "fairly warned and will have to suffer the consequences."

Plan commission favors stadium

175 residents.

WILLIAM MOORE, attorney for the developers, said Madison Square Garden had scaled down the projected size of the condominium apartment buildings from 2,700 units to 2,300.

Moore said the entire project would be "very dramatic and profitable" for the village and the developers. He reiterated his position that the plans were subject to change as the hearings went through the village channels.

"We want your blessings because we deserve your blessings," Moore appealed to the commissioners.

He also took exception to the village Environmental Control Commission hearings the night before in which developers' testimony and studies were closely questioned.

He said he would not tolerate accusations that his witnesses and associates had lied to the village. He also labeled a critical article in the "Chicago Independent" magazine as "blatherings of one hostile writer."

Tax bills drop for 2nd year in the village

Prospect will pay the highest tax for municipal, about $1.129 per $100 assessed valuation; lowest tax in Elk Grove Village, with a $.608 per $100 assessed valuation.

Tax levies for High School Dist. 214 and for all area grammar school districts decreased in Wheeling Township. Dist. 214's levy dropped from $2.454 to $2.403. Reductions in grammar school levies were: Dist. 21, down 11.2 cents; Dist. 23, down 16.2 cents; Dist. 25, down 10.3 cents; Dist. 26, down 11.5 cents and Dist. 57, down 13.7 cents.

The decreases in the school tax rates are mostly because school building bonds are being paid off, allowing for a drop in the tax rates. The declines generally do not mean a drop in the education or building maintenance funds, the two tax funds which provide most school operating money.

The Arlington Heights Park District levy changed slightly, from 36.7 cent to 36.6 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Taxes for Arlington Heights residents dropped between 3.6 and 5.7 cents last year.

KUSPER SAID taxes decreased in about 50 per cent of suburban Cook County and listed Elk Grove, Palatine and Wheeling townships as decreasing. Rates in about 20 per cent of suburban townships — including Maine and Schaumburg — were "definite increases," he said.

The new taxes apply to bills payable this year and were established by tax levies based on estimated expenditures by taxing bodies last fall.

The bills, mailed to area property owners this week, are second-installment taxes. County taxpayers paid first-installment taxes, based on estimated levies, last spring.

Car repairing available at some local dealerships

Motorists can obtain repair and maintenance service at a number of Northwest suburban car dealerships despite the strike by Local 701 of the International Assn. of Machinists.

The strike does not affect dealers who agree to employ mechanics under the terms of a contract that expired June 30. It's business as usual for non-union shops and foreign car dealers. Automotive service shops are unaffected by the strike.

The work stoppage began July 2 following a contract Greater Chicago, representing 281 Chicago area deal- dispute between Local 701 and the Employers Assn. of ers. Some 4,000 union members work for domestic auto dealerships in Chicago and suburbs.

TIMOTHY CANTWELL, service manager for Chrysler Plymouth cars at Mark Motors Inc., Arlington Heights, said the dealership employs mechanics under the terms of the old contract. The dealership is not affected by the work stoppage that began July 2, he said, "except it's slowed down the business because nobody knows we're open."

The non-union shops such as Grand Spaulding Dodge, Inc., in Buffalo Grove and North Shore Motors, Ltd., in Wheeling offer service to motorists. Increased requests for servince resulting from the strike may cause a slight delay in obtaining service, a Grand Spaulding Dodge service spokesman said.

The service department personnel at Sullivan Pontiac, Arlington Heights, said mechanics are on the job. At Des Plaines Chrysler Plymouth Sales, Inc., Des Plaines, a service representative said work is affected by the strike. The firm is taking orders for service, however.

AMONG THE dealerships affected by the strike are Ladendorf Motors, Inc. in Des Plaines, Hoskins Chevrolet, Inc., in Elk Grove Village, Cass Ford, Inc., in Des Plaines and Bierck Cadillac, Ltd. in Schaumburg.

Mechanics posted at the entrance of Cass Ford, 750 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines, distributed handbills to the public Tuesday. The Local 701 members said the handbill, calling on the motoring public to honor picket lines, could help their cause. The mechanics do not stop delivery of new and used cars.

Mechanics at the Des Plaines dealership said the terms of the dealers' proposed contract agreement, rejected July 25, would have caused a $70 a week decrease in wages. The contract proposal called for the elimination of the dealer-mechanic split of service charges after the mechanic logs 40 hours work in one week, an increase in hourly wages and a guaranteed 32-hour week.

No information on contract negotiations was available Tuesday from Local 701 or the employer association.

Planned finance crunch led to RTA, official says

Suburban opposition to the Regional Transportation Authority "has considerably subsided," according to RTA Board member Joseph A. Tecson.

Writing in the current issue of The Chicago Bar Record, Tecson also asserted that a financial crisis "carefully calculated" by Illinois legislative leaders led to formation of the RTA.

Tecson's analysis of the hard-fought referendum last year to approve the six-county RTA says, "The feeling seems to be that the referendum is over and the RTA is here to stay, so let's all do our best to make it work for the benefit of all the residents in the six-county area, regardless of who had previously endorsed it or opposed it.

"However, it would be an understatement to say that the RTA will continue to be closely scrutinized by its opponents," he said.

TECSON HAS written a two-part history of the RTA and events leading up to it, including formation of horse-drawn streetcar companies in Chicago in 1858. The first half of the story is in the current May-June issue of the bimounthly publication of the Chicago Bar Assn., and the second part will appear in mid-September.

Tecson said the RTA referendum never would have been passed except for the combination of financial crises in transportation in 1973.

"It is this writer's observation that there never would have been an RTA except for the financial crunches which were so carefully calculated to take place in the summer of 1973," he said. "This calculation was done by the legislative leaders. The General Assembly in 1973 was delicately balanced."

Tecson said all sides had to compromise, including the governor and the mayor of Chicago. Tecson's analysis explains that the General Assembly had allocated just enough emergency aid money to the Chicago Transit Authority, commuter railroads and suburban bus companies to get them through the period ending June 30, 1973.

The ensuing crises forced the governor to issue a $12 million loan to the CTA and the RTA compromise was hammered out in "summit conferences" during the Thanksgiving holidays.

TECSON SAYS, however, that without the new Illinois Constitution in 1970, the RTA could not have been formed, and he says it is likely that public transportation systems already might have collapsed or developed such high fares that the public could not afford to use them.

Tecson, who is an attorney and former member of the Illinois Constitutional Convention, wrote the series for the Record. He interviewed most of the major figures in the events leading to formation of the RTA, including former Gov. Richard Ogilvie and former House Speaker W. Robert Blair.

State Fair opens Friday

by ROBERT KIECKHEFER

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The 123rd Illinois State Fair officially opens its gates Friday with the nation's largest livestock show, one of the most prestigious harness racing programs anywhere and several new "program" areas designed to appeal to everyone.

The most obvious additions to the 1975 exposition will be the "Top of the Fair Supper Club" with sit-down dinners and live entertainment; a "Super Livestock Review" featuring a parade of the fair's grand champions; a new "Grandstand Plaza" with family entertainment and Illinois-produced food; and expanded, relocated Agri World exhibition.

A new "Teen World" will be located on the site of the old Farm-A-Rama building, which burned after last year's fair.

LIVESTOCK competition, as usual, provides the heart of this year's fair. Thousands of farmers from all parts of the nation will fill some 60 barns with top-quality beef and dairy cattle, horses, swine, sheep, dairy goats, poultry and rabbits.

The fair's top three animals — the grand champion steer, barrow and wether — will be sold at the traditional auction Tuesday. Each of the last three fairs has established a record price for one type of animal: $10,200 for the steer in 1972, $10,500 for the barrow in 1973 and $3,000 for the wether in 1974.

Those who can't afford those prices can get a look at the winning animals in the new "Super Livestock Review" Wednesday night. That event also will feature a country music show and horse acts.

Other livestock events include the nationally known Illinois State Fair Rooster Crowing Jamboree and a new exhibition of "exotic" beef cattle breeds.

GRAND CIRCUIT harness races at the fair Monday through Friday will set the stage for the Hambletonian in DuQuoin later in the month. The best trotters and pacers on the Grand Circuit will compete for purses totaling $583,500 in the Review Futurity and the Illinois State Fair Colt Stakes. Quarter horse races will be held Thursday on Preview Day.

There will not, however, be any legal betting on this year's races. Although the legislature passed a bill permitting legalized betting at the fair, the measure does not take effect until Oct. 1.

For those who remain unimpressed with livestock, the fair will offer two beer tents featuring country and ethnic music; a new restaurant and beer garden atop the Illinois Building; nightly grandstand shows; society and western horse shows; strolling bands and daily parades.

Gooding's "Million Dollar Midway" will have 35 rides and 15 shows at the fair.

USAC AUTO RACES will be held the final two days of the fair; U.S.-Polish boxing matches held Wednesday will be taped for later broadcast by a television network; the grand champion ham, bacon and honey will be auctioned for the first time, in the fair's recent history; a new nightly film festival will feature motion pictures ranging from John Wayne horse operas to the Marx Brothers "Night at the Opera"; and bingo will be run for the second year in a row by Sertoma clubs from around the state.

This year's fair has abandoned the policy of free grandstand shows. Those programs, the horse shows and the "Happy Hollow" midway, however, are virtually the only events for which there is any additional charge.

Admission to the grounds is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children, senior citizens and the disabled. Veterans and their immediate families will be admitted free until noon on Veterans Day Aug. 10; youths under 18 will be let in free until noon on youth day Aug. 11; disabled persons will be charged ho admission fee the morning of Disabled Citizens Day Aug. 12; the elderly get a pass until noon on Golden Age Day Aug. 15; and morning admission on the fair's final day is 50 cents for everyone.

The fair will be open from 6 a.m. to midnight each day of its 10-day run.

FAA to study methods of cutting airport noise

Methods of reducing noise at major airports will be studied in the next few months by the Federal Aviation Administration.

The FAA will conduct a series of public hearings before proposing its "Airport Noise Policy." The agency is also seeking comments on its policy options published in the Federal Register, July 9, 1975.

A copy of the notice may be obtained by writing to: Federal Aviation Administration, Associate Administrator of Policy Development and Review, 800 Independence Ave., S.W., Washington, D.C., 20591, Attn.: Airport Noise Policy.

Comments on the proposals should be sent to the same address.

The options listed by the FAA included:

- Place responsibility for noise control restrictions on the local airport operators, allowing any restrictions that do not conflict with federal responsibilities for aircraft navigation and controls.
- FAA would develop a comprehensive federal regulatory program of noise abatement that would be used at individual airports. The FAA says that would take considerable time to produce.
- Require public operators to prepare local noise abatement plans and submit them to the FAA for approval.
- Continue present noise abatement efforts by developing technology and operating procedures. Initiative for local restrictions would be left to airport operators but the FAA would take action if the rules constituted an unfair burden on interstate commerce or interfered with aircraft operating procedures.

Dates and locations of public hearings will be announced by the FAA.

Blame shared in jail scandal

Conditions at Cook County Jail are a mess that reflect insensitivity on the part of the general public and incompetence among others more directly involved.

Wholesale escapes, unbearable living conditions, mounting evidence of dope traffic, bribery and abuse of inmates make it evident that major changes are needed.

An aide to Gov. Daniel Walker said the persistent problems at the jail reflect "more than just the fault of one man." We agree.

But that does not detract from the clear evidence that Winston Moore, the man who must answer directly for the administration of Cook County Jail, has not carried out his responsibilities well enough and should be removed as executive director of the County Department of Corrections.

RICHARD ELROD

The task of administering a jail which regularly is crowded with more than twice the number of inmates for which it was designed is clearly difficult. The record suggests it is beyond Moore's capabilities.

The conditions which make the job so difficult must be blamed on many sources, including Sheriff Richard Elrod, who is ultimately responsible for the jail; Mayor Richard J. Daley, who has fostered the hiring of political hacks as jail guards and administrators; and the County Board, which has failed to provide the money and the regulations for trained personnel to run the jail.

If Elrod is correct in the 13-point bill of particulars he has brought against Moore, we wonder why he never noticed them earlier in his five years as sheriff.

Elrod alternately blames the County Board for the lack of funds to hire trained personnel and then attempts to shift the blame for patronage hiring to the advice of his mentor, the mayor.

The firing of Moore and the injection of $1.5 million in state funds which has been proposed by Walker are good first steps toward improving conditions at the jail. But any meaningful improvements will require more attention from Elrod and the County Board than either has demonstrated in the past.

Stadium plans rankle residents

In your July 9 Herald editorial entitled, "Revenue bond financing best," the big question, "What is the greater good — the stadium or a residential/commercial development?" was not answered, let alone asked.

However, you did refer to it as a " . . . stadium used relatively few days each year."

I apologize. I guess you did answer the question about the greater good for Arlington Heights.

D. J. Rudd
Arlington Heights

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is a letter to Arlington Heights Village Pres. James Ryan with a copy to The Herald.

I attended my first village board meeting Monday evening, July 14, relative to the proposed stadium.

As a supporter of yours in your election to village president, I am really dismayed and disappointed at your performance. I appreciate that the prime purpose of the meeting was the bonding issue. However, you went to considerable length to limit participation from the audience. I question whether you realize the growing resentment for this proposal, whether financed by obligation or revenue bonds. You owe it to this community to exercise Mr. Cook's initial point and that is a "referendum" to the community to see if this is what the people want.

The entire idea of a stadium in our community is unbelievable, besides just the problem of financing. We don't need the congestion, traffic, noise and problems that will relate to this stadium. Certainly the board and you are more capable of developments that could lower our tax base, if this is the one benefit the community would receive.

Donald M. Diersen

As a resident of Arlington Heights for the past 19 years and a homeowner for those 19 years, I am very concerned about the proposed stadium for Arlington Heights to house the Bears football team.

Perhaps one of our city fathers ought to come up here to look into their stadium project.

What started out as a $47 million project is now up to $65 million and the parking lot is not even started.

In this inflationary era we are in, with homeowners strapped by new assessments, I believe much more consideration be given as to what "pitfalls" might be ahead once the stadium in Arlington Heights is started if it be deemed so.

I am writing this from Seattle, where I am obliged to be on a business trip.

She applauds maintenance men

I am writing to express my sincere thanks and commendation to a member of the Des Plaines City maintenance crew. I do not know his name, so I can only hope he will read this note of appreciation.

My 6-year-old son was injured while bike riding with me; we were over a block from home and he was bleeding heavily from the head. This gentleman happened to be driving down the street, stopped and put my son into the truck with me, and told his partners to take home our bicycles. He then rushed us home where my husband and he drove my son to the emergency ward. I am most grateful to this man, as it was indeed crucial that my child receive treatment quickly, and thanks to this generous human being the injury was treated before any permanent damage was incurred. I regret that in the stress of the moment I did not ask this man's name; however, both my husband and I express a very sincere thank you to this fine man.

Fear not! We can save shrinking ozone layer

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — New evidence that chemicals from aerosol spray cans are destroying the ozone layer is cause for perturbation and great dismay.

The gravity of the situation may be seen in the fact that the Food and Drug Administration is being petitioned to ban sprays containing fluorcarbon propellants.

It is doubtful that humankind could survive without the ozone layer to shield the earth's atmosphere from solar radiation. Which is perturbing.

But it also is doubtful that humankind could survive without lemon-fresh hair spray, anti-perspirants and instant foaming lather. Which is dismaying.

Humankind, I regret to say, is facing up to the latter prospect bravely. Typical of the timorous public reaction was the comment of my friend Wally Tortbaker.

"If God had intended humankind to live without lemon fresh antiperspirants, He would have put citrus juice in our glands," Tortbaker lamented.

The situation is then, in a nutshell, dire. But as long as there's an aerosol can for spraying clouds with silver linings, we need not despair.

One possible way out of the dilemma was suggested to me by a scientific-minded colleague who has abiding faith in the ability of humankind to wriggle out of tight places.

"What is needed is something to offset the destructive effect of spray can propellants," he pointed out. "So how about an aerosol can that sprays pure ozone?"

"By George," I cried, "I think you're onto something."

"As I see it," my colleague continued, "every can of instant plastic dessert topping, or whatever, could have a container of ozone attached. Each time you pressed the button to glop up your strawberries with a glob of imitation whipped cream, you also would release a counter-balancing blast of ozone.

"It would drift up to the upper atmosphere along with the fluorcarbons and replace any part of the ozone layer that the chemicals destroyed."

I said, "It surely looks good on paper, but where are we going to get the canned ozone?"

My colleague squared hs shoulders resolutely. "We're going to manufacture it. Ozone is nothing but a blue, gaseous, oxidizing form of oxygen. You can't tell me any country that is capable of producing a lemon-fresh feminine hygiene spray isn't capable for producing an ozone spray."

I agreed that good, old-fashioned American know-how probably could be depended upon to achieve such a breakthrough.

"And if we're lucky," my colleague enthused, "we might even improve the ozone formula and make it possible for the earth to have a lemon-fresh atmosphere."

LONG ISLAND, N.Y., Aug. 6 — On orders of British Adm. Graves at Boston, British ships began removing livestock and crops from islands in Long Island Sound. Some of the American side suspected that the owners of provisions on Fishers Island actually sold the provisions to the British.

They commend aldermen

We want to thank:

All the aldermen who voted to defeat the rezoning of the 666 Garland Place property last Monday evening at the Des Plaines City Council meeting. They are to be commended for the giving of their time to listen to both sides of the issue. Special thanks is due our 1st Ward aldermen, Alderman Szabo and Alderman Koplos.

The residents (over 700) who backed us by petition signatures and their encouragement. Their support throughout our "uphill battle" was invaluable.

The press for keeping the issue before the whole community and for non-biased reporting of the various hearings.

The feedback we have received from residents all over the city has been unanimous in praise of the aldermen's decision. It has proved to the "doubters" who were for us but said, "you can't fight the City Hall people and win" that it can be done. It has given renewed faith to the average citizen that his voice can be heard and that the city council does listen to the concerns of the residents.

Bell increase to hit businesses hardest

by BOB GALLAS

Hefty proposed rate increases, aimed at increasing Illinois Bell Telephone's rate of profit, appear to hit large users, primarily businesses, hardest.

While proposed phone rate hikes will mean average 5-10 per cent increases for the residential customer along with 20-cent pay phone calls and charges for directory assistance calls, "usage sensitive" billing is the key in Bell's fifth request for added revenue since 1969. This request totals $177-million.

If proposed rate hikes are approved, and a decision is expected from the Illinois Commerce Commission later this year, business and other large users could be faced with:

- Wide Area Telephone Service (WATS) 20-30 per cent higher, with largest increases for shorter distances.
- Station equipment like telephones for businesses priced separately under a "hardware pricing" concept.
- Local message unit calls timed in Chicago and some suburbs. Message unit rates over 1,200 would go up from 5¼ cents to 5¾ cents per unit. Initial and over-time periods would be reduced on multimessage unit calls.
- Series 150, 200 and 300 PBX systems would be replaced with feature-based pricing with rate increases between 5 and 10 per cent.
- Rates for "flat rate" service would rise 5 to 10 per cent. Additional charges for station equipment would be charged.
- Rates for 10 plus button key switchboard equipment would be reduced through the hardware pricing concept. Key system, feature-line charges would go up about 10 per cent.
- Intrastate long distance rates for short distances generally would be increased. Though initial calling period price remains the same, initial calling period would drop from three minutes to two minutes within Illinois.

One feature of Illinois Bell's rate hike request is a proposed "hardware pricing" plan which separates phone equipment from line costs. The concept will apply only to business service. Residential service will continue to include charges for one telephone in the regular service bill.

This does not mean, however, that business customers will be able to order a phone line and then install their own equipment. Customer-owned equipment will not be permitted without an additional charge for a connecting arrangement.

For example, under present pricing, a business with one phone and an extension, would pay the line rate, plus $1.35 per month for the extension. Under the proposed pricing system, a business with two phones will pay the line rate, plus $1.60 per month for each phone.

LINE CHARGE for the touch tone phone will go up 5-10 per cent, but the Touch Tone Line charge will drop from $2 to $1 under the proposed changes. But the changes also include a proposed touch tone charge of 60 cents per month per phone.

So a business that now pays a line charge, plus $1.35 per month for an extension, will be paying 5-10 per cent higher phone bills, but $1 less for Touch Tone. But it will cost $4.40 more per month to keep two Touch Tone phones.

Also proposed is a rise in additional message units (AMUS) in excess of 1,200 per month. AMUs over 1,200 will go from 5¼ to 5¾ cents each. AMUs up to 1,200 will remain at present rate of 5¾ each, so in effect, large users will pay a 9.5 per cent increase while smaller users will not be affected.

Illinois Bell and the opposition to the proposed rate hikes have been battling it out since April, before ICC hearing officer Robert Blalock. The hearings usually take place on the 19th floor of the State of Illinois Building at LaSalle and Randolph in Chicago.

The "opposition," includes lawyers for Cook County, the City of Chicago, the federal government and various organizations such as the Illinois Retail Merchants Assn.

Richard Means and Ellis Levin, who are arguing for the State's Attorneys office, are no strangers to the workings of Illinois Bell. Levin is former chairman of the Independent Voters of Illinois, a watchdog group that shadowed Illinois Bell among others, in the past. Means is a former attorney for that group.

So far, Illinois Bell has been presenting witnesses to testify in behalf of the company. Blalock said he expects opposition to the proposed rate hikes to begin presenting their witnesses in September. An ICC decision on whether to grant the IBT request is expected to be issued between December and February.

MEANS, in his opening statement at the hearings last April, suggested Bell's request for a rate hike is tied to an ICC request that Bell should show cause why it should not have to refund more than $15-million in 1974 profits.

They (Bell) . . . "have decided that a good defense to the rebate citation is in fact, a good offense," said Means. Means told The Herald he hopes to show that not only are the proposed rate hikes unnecessary, but that present rates are providing Bell with too much revenue and should be rolled back.

Bell is asking that its maximum annual rate of profit be raised from its current 8.5 to 9.7 per cent.

The company, one of the most successful AT&T Bell companies in the country, says it needs to increase profits to keep the company "attractive" for investors who supply it with expansion capital.

Illinois Bell's rate increase requests are similar to many rate hikes currently being requested by other AT&T Bell companies or those already in effect in other parts of the country.

AT&T companies are trying to raise their rates of return to make their companies "more attractive" to investors.

IN MICHIGAN, for example, "usage sensitive" billing, where large users pay more, has already gone into effect. Michigan Bell has applied for a rate hike which will generate about $88-million in additional revenues.

The company, in its rate hike petition to the Michigan Public Service Commission, says it needs the $88-million to come up to its allowable maximum rate of return on common equity, 10.19 per cent. Illinois Bell's return on common equity in 1974 was 11.33 per cent.

In testifying before the ICC, Hugh Latimer, Illinois Bell Vice president and treasurer, said his company must get earnings up from 11.33 per cent to 13 to 14 per cent.

In a separate action, Michigan Bell is petitioning for separate charges for directory assistance calls. However, if that's granted, directory assistance charges will mean a decrease in Michigan Bell phone bills to make up for the revenue from directory assistance calls.

Richardson sales drop

The Richardson Co., Des Plaines, reported second quarter sales of $29,575,000. The figure is a 20 per cent decline from comparable 1974 sales of $36,953,000.

Net earnings for the quarter amounted to $53,000, a sharp decrease compared to 1974 quarterly earnings of $976,000. The loss per common share after a preferred dividends provision of $239,000, is 12 cents compared to 45 cents earnings the same period a year earlier.

Six-month sales totaled $57,816,000 compared to $71,948,000 in 1974. Net earnings for the period amounted to $83,000 compared to $2,448,000 in 1974. After provision for preferred dividends, the loss per common share was 25 cents compared to $1.22 net earnings a year earlier. William Basile, president, forecast improved operating profits in the second half of 1975. The company specializes in chemicals, industrial materials and graphic arts materials.

On Ghost Signals

by Ed Landwehr

Maybe you haven't been pulling too many tabs off beer cans. Those double and triple images on the TV screen could be real ghosts.

You see, an antenna picks up a signal directly from the sending station. A thousandth of a second later it may pick up the same signal reflecting off a building, low cloud or a passing airplane. You can have several signals going at the same time.

Some antennas have better directivity than others, too. They hold off signals coming from the side. If you're constantly bothered with these ghosts, perhaps you should phone 255-0700 and let Landwehr's Home Appliances inspect your antenna system. We have complete knowledge of this area and can show you the right antenna for your neighborhood.

Look in at 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights and see some fine displays of nationally-advertised color TVs. We assure accurate installation and maintenance service with all purchases

Use robot welders, painters as human replacements

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ever since Karl Capek wrote his imaginative play "RUR" half a century ago, the concept of the useful robot has intrigued people.

Now, the industrial robot is coming into fairly wide use, particularly in Europe, says Frost & Sullivan, New York business research firm.

Expensive robots have been made in the United States, Sweden, Germany and Japan for some years, but their use up to now has been largely confined to industrial tasks deemed too dangerous for human beings — handling highly radioactive materials, for example. There has been no attempt in the United States to introduce them as economical replacements for human labor.

BUT THAT'S NO longer true in Europe and Japan, says Frost & Sullivan in a new study reaching the conclusion that the European market for industrial robots will total at least $5 billion a year in 1985.

The report says more than 170 companies around the world are building at least 200 models of robots with the Japanese making the most sophisticated, followed in order by the United States and Sweden.

The study says shortages of labor and hourly wage rates that are going up much faster than those in the United States are spurring the demand for robots in Japan and Europe.

Sweden and Germany are the European countries making the greatest use of robots. They are used in many industries for spray painting, welding, drilling and materials handling. They are controlled by computers. The report says in many industries a new robot will pay for itself in a single year in comparison with the cost of human labor to do the same tasks.

TWO AMERICAN companies, Unimation division of Condec Corp., and Versatran division of AMF, Inc., have almost 500 installations in Europe and Japan, a big share of the burgeoning robot market.

The present industrial robots can do only very simple tasks involving no alternative moves, the study says. The next generation is expected to be able to carry out simple testing and alternative operations, and by 1985 it is expected robots with so-called perceptual motors will be available. It is hoped these will be programmable so they will have the rough equivalent of human hand-to-eye control and a simplified mechanical intelligence allowing them to carry out some discrete assembly operations.

Angiosperm plants protect seeds

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Richard Burla, age 12, of Lethbridge, Alta., Canada, for is question:

WHAT ARE ANGIOSPERMS

The term angiosperms belongs to botanists who study the plant world. To understand it, we must pair it with the term gymnosperm. Together they reveal two major classifications of plants. They also reveal a great deal about the age-old history of the plant world, plus secrets about the many species that clothe our green earth.

All seed-bearing plants are classed as either antiosperms or gymnosperms. About 55 million years ago, there were only the gymnosperms, meaning the naked seed plants. Their simple, smallish seeds had no pods, shells or tough outer coats to protect them. Most of the gymnosperms were evergreen conifers. They produced woody brown seeds under the scales of cones on the female trees. This worked well for countless ages — and some 500 or so splendid gymnosperms survived successfully in the modern plant world.

However, at last it became necessary to make some major improvements. After all, it takes a long time for a pinecone to produce a sprouting young tree. What's more, when a browsing animal bites off a cone-bearing twig, a whole generation of seeds is lost. If the plant world was to spread and thrive as it should, obviously it needed quicker and safer methods of multiplication.

Eventually this led to the creation of the angiosperms, plants that produce covered seeds. Most experts suspect this fabulous project began when certain spore-bearing leaves folded over and around to protect a fertilized plant seed. In time, this successful method branched out to produce the multitude of pods, shells and other hard covering of the modern angiosperms.

The big problem was spreading pollen dust to reach and fertilize the seeds. However, this was solved by the creation of nature's dazzling display of flowers and tasty fruits. Flowers and fruits are angiosperm devices to attract insects and other animals to spread pollen from flower to flower and seeds to new locations.

Now 150,000 antiosperms produce flowers and seeds protected in hard cases. Flowers that depend on visiting insects to spread pollen, produce supplies of tasty nectar. Each species depends on certain insects to reach its nectar — and wears the favorite color plus the favorite perfume of its favorite insect. All these wondrous creations are part of the angiosperm story that began more than 50 million years ago.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Laura Sudbaymy, age 11, of Portland, Me., for her question:

WHAT USE IS AN ELEPHANT'S TRUNK

The elephant's trunk is so useful that he could not possibly get along without it. Scientists call it a proboscis, which is their word for a remarkable, extra-long nose. Actually it is an extra-long extension of the nose merged with the upper lip. As a nose, it works as a supersensitive smeller. When he walks along, the elephant sways his trunk from side to side, smelling the ground. Now and then he lifts it to sniff the breezes to catch faraway scents.

The end of the trunk has either one or two lobes that act like fingers to gather boughs from the treetops or pick up peanuts. The trunk sucks up water to squirt in the elephant's mouth or spray his back. It has 40,000 pliable muscles and is strong enough to hoist a one-ton tree trunk. It also can be used to stroke a friend or baby elephant with tender caresses.

Rectify small slam count

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Some years back some unknown expert invented the phrase, "Rectify the count." You rectify the count by conceding a trick in order to develop a squeeze later. Needless to say, you can't afford to rectify the count when you are in a grand slam.

South looks over dummy and counts to 11 top-card winners. He notes that the 12th winner will be there if either clubs or hearts break nicely. Suppose neither suit breaks?

If each opponent controls one, South is going to pay off. If one opponent must try to guard both South can squeeze him, but he must go through the preliminary of rectifying the count.

How does he do this? At trick two he leads a low heart from either hand and ducks in the other.

After this start he wins the return and cashes his spades and diamonds to come down to a six-card ending. Dummy holds two hearts and four clubs. South three hearts and three clubs and East holds his head in agony.

He is forced to jettison either a heart or a club. A heart discard establishes South's small heart, a club discard makes dummy's fourth club good.

Luncheon develops into 'safe' event

Bears make visit but nothing happens

Mike Klein
Staff Sportswriter

Perhaps it was a case of lockjaw. Or the drinks might have been too strong. But all the questions seemed inappropriate. Nobody really had anything important to offer about That Great Stadium.

The event: A sports luncheon Tuesday featuring Chicago Bears' owner George Halas, Jim Finks, et al. The setting: Durante Room at Arlington Park.

And the heated topic: That rumored Arlington Heights football stadium which would have potential financing from three or four alleged scources.

But when you departed yesterday's luncheon featuring the Bears' official family, there was a nagging question: What happened? And the answer: Nothing.

Oh yes, George Halas advertised a good off-tackle play. Muggs Halas insisted the Chicago Bears will forever be known as Chicago Bears. Jim Finks claimed quarterback in no problem whatsoever. And Ed McCaskey wondered why they brought him along.

But what happened to the expected questioning from the 200-odd businessmen who paid $7.50 each to eat lunch, watch the Bears' promotional film "Future of Promise" and look at Papa Bear, who's fresh from minor surgery.

Here's a sampling:

The first guy wondered if Lionel Antoine's legs might carry him through an entire season at offensive tackle. He later wondered if the Super Bowl will ever be played in Chicago during balmy January.

Then a man asked Bears' VP and General Manager Finks why Chicago draft choices usually turn into lemons. Finks, longtime Minnesota Vikings' front office leader, probably could have told us. But he didn't.

Finally, someone broke the ice. How, said a man sitting up front, did the Bears expect the stadium might be financed?

It was a good question, because on Monday night the Arlington Heights Village Board vetoed any chance of general obligation bonds being used. So rest easy, friends. The money won't come out of your real estate taxes.

But then Bears' President Muggs Halas took his turn to say nothing. After complimenting new running back Cid Edwards and Finks, Halas explained, "Neither Madison Square Garden (co-developer with the Bears) nor the Chicago Bears feel they should suggest how the stadium should be financed."

Then Muggsy iced his cake: "This is a great big step for the village. We bow to the village and the people of Arlington Heights.

"We hope you'll think of the positive things this will do for Arlington Heights," said Muggs. "We're on record that if this costs the taxpayers money, we'll be no part of it."

And that's the exciting news from Tuesday's luncheon sponsored by the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce.

It was an incredibly safe event. Slick. Well planned. Nobody got burned. The Chamber did its bit for civic pride . . . civic advancement . . . new civic goals. The Bears brought virtually the entire braintrust.

But one fact remains. That Great Stadium has become such a beaten down, tired old dog that I really wonder if the next step isn't a quick six-foot drop.

So here are some rapidly culled strictly personal predictions:

* * * George Halas, oldest Bear in the National Football League timbers, will never see his Bears play in Arlington Heights unless they increase the seating capacity at Recreation Park.

(Translated: All those Bears' coaches and front office people who live northwest should consider moving back into Chicago.)

* * * Madison Square Garden, Inc., the New York City based multi-million company with a great hunk of Sporting Americana, doesn't want the stadium bad enough to take any substantial financial risk.

(Translated: Let those Arlington Heights, Ill., homeowners bite their checkbooks if the project comes in a couple billion dollars over budget.) And,

* * * I'm not altogether sure now that Arlington Heights even wants the stadium. Or whether the community even understands the major issues behind financing.

(Translated: Local citizenry doesn't understand legal mumbo-jumbo. Homeowners run scared. Barbers, pet store owners and bird watchers wonder about positive results from pro football in Arlington Heights. All people act worried.)

Of course, Tommy Taxpayer will NEVER shell out coins for the stadium. Not after the Arlington Heights Village Board unanimously rejected general obligation funding at Monday evening's session.

And Tuesday night, the Plan Commission further considered Madison Square Garden's blueprint package for total Arlington Park development. MSQ owns the track.

That includes new apartments, barns and dorms, an industrial section and parking for 12,000 cars.

Whatever . . . the Bears don't want another long term contract in Soldier Field. They can't even practice there this season because the crumbling edifice is being rebuilt so it doesn't collapse and kill everyone.

More nice words: "This is Bear territory," Muggs Halas told the luncheon group. "We certainly want to be here. But, we only want to be in Arlington Heights if Arlington Heights wants the Chicago Bears."

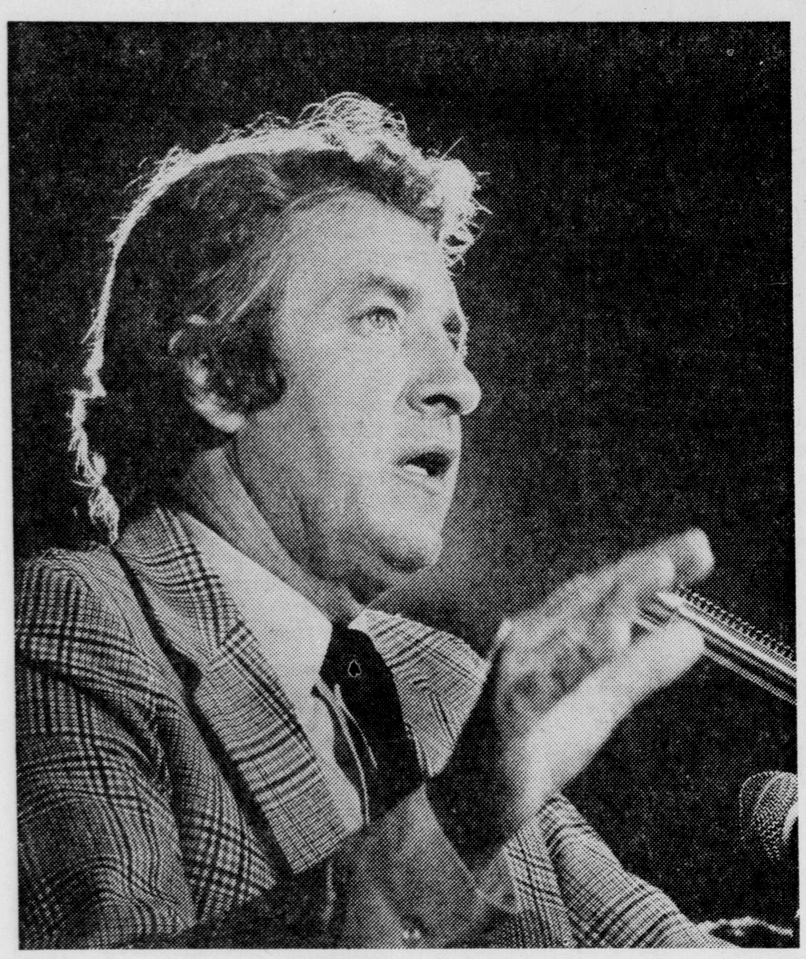
Papa Bear wants to play his 1977 season in Arlington Heights but I seriously wonder now if it will ever happen.

For one, because money is tight. Ten years ago, there wouldn't have been the financial hassles. Ten years ago, any smart big-time city would have seen the chance to build a major sports facility. Not Chicago.

But also, because this entire stadium issue is old news.

And the great expression of overwhelming support that I looked for Tuesday just didn't seem to be there.

Like I said before, it was a safe luncheon. Nobody got burned.



MAKING A POINT is Jim Finks, vice president and general manager of the Chicago Bears, at a luncheon yesterday at Arlington Park. The special program featuring members of the Bears' organization was sponsored by the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce.

Irving-Lake to play third contest tonight in Babe Ruth headliner

The Irving-Lake Senior Babe Ruth League team is ready to play their third game tonight in the regional tourney in Fort Knox, Ky.

They've already won the first two in the rain-delayed, double-elimination regional, beating the host team 2-1 Monday night in eight innings.

Coached by Lou Bocci, the Illinois representative team fell behind 1-0 in the sixth inning against Fort Knox, with an unearned run coming as a result of two errors on the weather-beaten field.

In the bottom of the sixth, Irving-Lake tied the score on two hit abatters and an RBI single for Russ Zonca. Tim Domek, who had pitched the first six innings, was relieved by Keith Abraham, who got the win with two scoreless innings.

Irving-Lake won the game with a walk, an error, and a single by Jeff Ironside in the eighth, allowing them to move to the semifinals of the winners' bracket against Kentucky tonight.

Bocci feels that his team has a good chance to advance to the nationals this coming weekend in Seattle, Wash. They need two more wins to do so and the coach is relying on his exceptional pitching to carry the team through.

Irving-Lake won their first game last Saturday 4-1 over Indiana. Al Pondel pitched a complete game, five-hitter and also collected one of seven hits with an RBI.

Ironside and Zonca had two hits each both of Zonca's going for doubles. Jim Cole and Gary Frontier received RBI walks, while the fourth run scored on a passed ball. The winners scored double runs in both the fifth and seventh innings to pick up the win.

Bears trade Barnes, Pagac

The Chicago Bears announced Tuesday night quarterback Joe Barnes and tight end Fred Pagac have been sent to the New York Jets for cash.

Barnes, a second year player from Texas Tech, was the Bears 13th-round draft choice in 1974. In two regular season games last year, he completed two of nine passes for 29 yards and threw one interception. Pagac, a second year player from Ohio State, joined the Bears in 1974 as a free agent. He started all 14 regular season games for the Bears and was honored as the Brian Piccolo award winner. The transaction reduced the Bears Chicago roster to 67 players.

The Bears also announced Tuesday that running back Walter Payton was admitted to Illinois Masonic Medical Center for treatment of an elbow injury he suffered during practice with the College All-Star team.

The Bears also put rookie linebacker Tom Hicks on the reserve list and six others on waivers.

White Sox split doubleheader

Jerry Remy batted in four runs with a pair of singles Tuesday night to lead Ed Figueroa and the California Angels to a 10-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox in the first game of a doubleheader at Chicago.

The Sox gained a split in the twinbill, taking the second game, 4-1.

The Angels, with Mickey Rivers going 4-for-5 and Dave Chalk and Bob Valentine each 3-for-5, got a season high 17 hits off a trio of pitchers, handing starter Claude Osteen, who couldn't finish the second inning, his 10th loss against six victories.

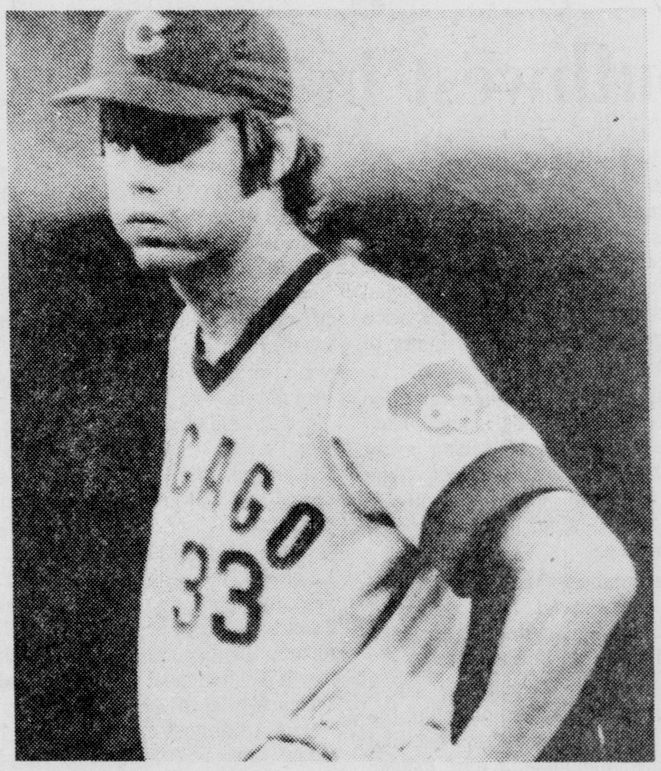
Remy's second-inning single scored Chalk who had singled and Valentine who had doubled. Remy hit his second single in the third inning after singles by Chalk and Valentine, a sacrifice and a walk to Mike Miley filled the bases.

Remy scored in the second on Rivers' triple and in the third on Dave Collins' sacrifice fly. Figuerola broke a three-game losing streak with his ninth win against eight losses, working eight innings.

Kingman honored, Melton fined

Dave Kingman of the New York Mets Tuesday was named the National League "Player of the Month" for July. The former Prospect High star hit .322 in July with 13 homers and 31 runs batted in. He outpolled St. Louis' Ted Simmons, 32-13 . . .

Chicago White Sox third baseman Bill Melton was fined $250 and given a three-day suspension by American League President Lee MacPhail for an incident Sunday when Melton bumped umpire Jim Evans. Melton is requesting a hearing and will continue to play until his appeal is heard . . .



SHELLSHOCKED! Cub pitcher Bill Bonham suffers at Philadelphia after failing to get an out Tuesday night.

Phillies' 10-run 1st kills Cubs

Garry Maddox and Mike Schmidt each homered to highlight a 10-run first inning during which Philadelphia made eight straight hits Tuesday night as the Phillies crushed the Chicago Cubs 13-5 at Philadelphia. Maddox drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a single in the inning and Schmidt connected with a man on. Schmidt added another two-run homer, his 23rd, in the fifth.

The night a 350-pound bear came to dinner

by PETER M. KELLY

DENVER (UPI) — When Steve Fuller and his family sat down to a pot of stew last winter, they couldn't have guessed who was coming to dinner.

A 350-pound grizzly scented the stew Fuller's wife had spent the day preparing in their park cabin, lumbered out of the woods and tried to smash through a window.

"The bear pushed its head into the room," said Fuller, a winter custodian in Wyoming's Yellowstone National Park. "I was convinced she was going to get into the house."

Fuller called up rangers, who trucked the bear 40 miles back into the high country, but the grizzly didn't give up. She appeared at the cabin on two subsequent occasions, breaking windows and shredding roof shingles trying to claw her way into the house. The bear finally was labeled an outlaw and killed.

"It's really too bad she had to be destroyed," said Fuller. "Grizzly bears are superb animals and there are very few left in the world."

According to Fuller and animal biologists, man is closing in on the grizzly in the United States. Trophy hunters are poaching the bear, and backpackers and campers are invading the high country of Wyoming, Colorado and Montana.

The government earlier this year proposed classifying the bear as a threatened species, restricting hunting to an area of northern Montana. Biologists in Wyoming, Idaho and Montana have started a study to determine the number of grizzlies in the United States. The estimate currently runs between 700 and 1,000.

But Fuller says he has little hope the domestic grizzly will survive.

"In the pre-white man years, Indians had no weapons against grizzly bears and a grizzly bear had no fear of man," said Fuller. "After the white man came with firearms, the grizzly bear learned fear. I tend to be pessimistic about their future."

When the west was young, grizzly bears roamed the Great Plains in search of food, and extended from Mexico to Alaska. The grizzly now inhabits the western provinces of Canada and Alaska in greater numbers than in the pocket of high country in the United States.

Moody by nature the grizzly is a loner even among its own kind. The bear's appetite for meat is voracious and it will dig for hours for ground squirrels. Each year in spawning season, the grizzly will haunt the shores of mountain lakes in hopes of catching fish, a high-protein food source.

The grizzly also can be a killer.

Two coeds were killed by a grizzly while camping in Montana's Yellowstone National Park in 1967. One of the first grizzly attacks on record is included in the journals of the Lewis and Clark expedition in the early 1800s.

Larry Roop, a field biologist with the Wyoming Fish and Game Department, says the mountain grizzly is shy of human contact.

"The grizzly has learned to avoid man and fear him," Roop said.

The problem of attacks begins when a grizzly learns man is a source of food, he said.

"Once they learn man is a food source, like lions in Africa, they are killers," said Roop. "The old bears that can't get a food source are the ones that may be trouble."

Roop, who is involved with the three-state effort to track and count the grizzlies left in the United States, says the bear's fate will be determined when it has no more room in which to avoid humans.

"The grizzly is a more remote wilderness-seeking animal," he said. "He seeks a certain amount of seclusion. They like the most rugged, remote parts of the country. They need large blocks of this to survive.

"They have this in the Yellowstone Park area, but it decreases in the amount of roads and logging and the large influx of backcountry users. We don't know what the outcome will be. Perhaps, he will be able to tolerate man."

4-H Fair —

The county 4-H fair held this past weekend north of Barrington, brings to mind that there are about 156,000 young people in the national 4-H dog care and training program.

The national 4-H dog care and training program is popular with young people from 9 to 19 in urban, suburban and rural areas. 4-H'ers are encouraged to keep track of their pets' progress by recording details of costs, feeding, health, training and vital statistics.

To these 4-H'ers owning a dog means more than just companionship and fun. It involves responsibility for the welfare of a living animal and concern for the community.

Northwest Suburban 2nd in Big League tourney; Southwest in regional Slightly bewildered themselves, the three-year-old Northwest Suburban Big League is rated second in the state, as a result of being shut out by Southwest Big League 4-0 in a night game at Northbrook that was played in fog, under lights and delayed twice by the grounds crew and an injury to an umpire.

The players and a spokesman for Northwest Suburban Big League, however, said there is no taking away credit to Southwest pitcher Gene Kmiec who will join his team in Grand Rapids, Mich. for the regional championship.

After eliminating Morton Grove, the NWSBL was forced into a playoff competition with Southwest, to whom they had already lost a game.

To reach their opportunity for a chance at the state championship, the NWSBL had to endure three exciting ball games, including a cliff hanger that went 11 innings, and a game in which two ambulances were on the field to serve an umpire hit by a thrown ball.

Here's how the action went in the final two games. In the first, Northwest's George Kaufman tripled, doubled and had two singles, Gene Rigitano doubled and singled driving in a tie-breaking run with his double in the 11th inning. Joh Pinderski came in as relief pitcher in the sixth inning and in the bottom of the 10th struck out the third out with bases loaded. Morton Grove's Ed Konar doubled and singled, his double driving in two runs in the fifth inning to tie up the game. Gold doubled and Bill Swanson and Brian Pesko singled for Morton Grove.

In the second game Southwest's Altobelli tripled and singled, Cerarat and Prince doubled and Prince also singled along with Wainscott and Flanagan while pitcher Kmiec recorded two singles. Northwest's Kaufman tripled again and Alden singled. Alden did an outstanding defensive job in center field.

Northwest Suburban Big League was founded three years ago by Bill McCarty to establish a place for his former little leaguers to play baseball. He had previously spent 11 years with little league including two years as president of Maine-Northfield. The league started with two teams from Maine-Northfield without uniforms or even a definite schedule. The next year Norridge and Schiller Park each brought in two teams and this year Norridge enlarged to three teams and Des Plaines West brought a team into the league. The league now has eight teams and will probably expand more next year.

The Northwest Suburban Big League added a bit more interest this year by appointing a Miss Northwest Suburban Big League, Kathy Budz, former Hoomecoming Queen at Maine North High School and a student at Western Illinois University.

Within the next two weeks the Norridge Ams will meet the Norridge Nats for the NWSBL championship in a two out of three series.

Rediscovering baseball

Dodgers wrap a product in beautiful ball park

(First of Two Parts)

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

LOS ANGELES — On these balmy ummer evenings, the people stream n like microbes along the arterial reeways which feed into Walter F. 'Malley's revenue palace. They ome by the tens of thousands — at a nightly rate of more than 35,000.

They have a chance to exceed more than three million, an historic figure, by the end of September — if the Los Angeles Dodgers can make a run at the Cincinnati Reds for the Western division title in the National League.

Baseball's all-time attendance record of 2,755,184, set when Dodger Stadium first opened for business in 1962, is virtually sure to be broken. More people will see the Dodgers at home this season than any team in all the recorded history of sports.

"The smartest thing they did was announce they would draw three million this year," says Hank Greenberg, who moved to Los Angeles this spring. "Everyone comes out because they want to be part of it."

Greenberg is the Hall-of-Fame slugger who is familiar with luring people o baseball games. He was associated with Bill Veeck in Cleveland and Chicago when those cities set their all-time attendance records a quarter of a century ago.

A general resurgence of baseball interest this year has people re-discovering the serenity of the ball park and the gentle nuances of the game. A steady five per cent increase will project baseball attendance past the 31 million mark in 1975.

Te Dodgers, as the leaders of all, provide a significant counterpoint to the plight of the San Francisco Giants, who went west at the seme time (1958) and now are struggling to draw more than half a million fans for the entire schedule. Los Angeles was already past the 1,000,000 milestone on June 9.

What is the magic of the Dodgers' attraction?

"They've been selling tickets here for 18 years," says one astute observer. "They do it 300 days a year. No stors opens or there's no gathering of 25 anywhere in southern California without the Dodgers represented."

Stu Zanville, who used to publicize the Los Angeles Lakers basektball team says, "They've got the best total public relations approach I've ever seen in sports. Starting in 1959, they took every sports editor in a 100-mile radius to their Florida training camp. When the Lakers won 33 straight games (1972), I'd invite a sports editor and he's say, 'Sorry, but March 8 I'm going to Vero Beach.' "

But the real story of the Dodgers as a draw is the product, and how it's wrapped.

Dodger Stadium is a beautiful ball park. Walter F. O'Malley, when he moved west from Brooklyn, secured a choice parcel of 300 acres plunk in the center of greater Los Angeles and built his own stadium. He could sell his investment for at least $75 million today, and that would be a steal.

"I really and truly think it's the most beautiful of all ball parks," says Vince Scully, the Dodger broadcaster who more than anyone educated southern California to baseball. "All the other new parks without exception are football stadiums where baseball is played. This is a baseball park. We have a ball park within a park.

"Where else can you sit and look out in the springtime at the Elysian hills and see ice plants rolling all over centerfield and rightfield? You see mountains in back of mountains. Add to all the natural beauty — he spent a million and a half dollars in landscaping.

"This isn't a bal park on the edge of downtown hanging over a river. This is a magnificent place. I'm sure people come here just to sit and enjoy it."

Dodger Stadium is accessible, at the confluence of the Los Angeles freeway system. Fans converge via the Hollywood freeway from the northwest, the Golden State freeway from the north, the Pasadena freeway from the northeast, the San Bernardino freeway from the east, the Santa Ana freeway from the southeast, the Harbor freeway from the south and the Santa Monica freeway from the west. And they come to a park area of the city where they won't be hassled.

A game at Dodger Stadium is, in Scully's words, "the best buy in town." Asks the announcer, "What the hell else can you buy for the same price you bought it in 1958?"

A family of four can attend a game for a total of $4.50, plus $1 for ample parking close to their seats. In the Forum, for Lakers' basketball, the cheapest single ticket, up in rooster's heaven, is $4.75, and prices range to $8.75 for most seats. The scale in Dodger Stadium goes from $1.50 for bleachers (children half price) to $3.50 for choice box seats. These are prices unchanged since 1958.

"They run as fine a sports operation as there is in the country," says Carroll Rosenbloom, the owner of the Los Angeles Rams. "The (New York) Mets are close, but don't pay as much attention to the fans.

"O'Malley, you've got to respect him. He has kept the ticket prices down. He would even sell them for half price. He keeps the place spotless and makes it easy for them to get a drink or go to the bathroom."

(Intruding thought: the Dodgers show a nice profit margin of $2 million with today's inflated expenses — think what they must have made in 1962 when they drew 2.75 million people at the same prices, with only half the expenses.)

Add to all the above accouterments a team worth watching. In their 17 years in Los Angeles, the Dodgers have won five National League pennants and finished second five times. They have had Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale and Maury Wills . . . and now they have Mike Marshall and Andy Messersmith and Steve Garvey.

Los Angeles Dodgers' stadium: the place to be for 18 seasons.

Biggest high school sports year begins Aug. 13

Athletes in eight sports (including 534 downstate and suburban football-playing schools) in which state tournament series are conducted this fall by the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) will begin practice Wednesday, Aug. 13.

Three tournament series will debut, while another will be conducted for the first time according to the established IHSA classification pattern. The new tournament series will be conducted in girls golf (district tournaments are set for Oct. 11 and the state final for Oct. 17-18 at the Illinois State University Course, Normal), girls field hockey (with sub-sectional tournaments set Oct. 28-Nov. 1, sectionals Nov. 7-8 and the state final Nov. 14-15 at New Trier West High School in Northfield) and girls swimming (with districts set for Oct. 25 and the state final Oct. 31-Nov. 1 at New Trier East High School in Winnetka).

Class A and Class AA competition will be conducted in the boys golf series, with districts set for Oct. 11, sectionals Oct. 18 and the state final Oct. 24-25 on the Orange and Blue courses at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

The other fall tournament series are boys cross country (with the state final slated Nov. 1 at Detweiler Park in Peoria), boys soccer (with the state final scheduled Nov. 7-8 at Illinois State University, Normal) and girls tennis (with the state final to be Oct. 24-25 at Arlington High School).

In addition, a series of 23 IHSA-sponsored football rules interpretation meetings for officials registered with the Association, coaches, administrators and other school personnel will be held throughout the state and surrounding area from Aug. 16 through Sept. 4, in order to provide uniform interpretations in revisions of the 1975 prep grid rules for all persons who are connected with the IHSA football program.

Serving as football rules interpreters this fall will be IHSA Asst. Executive Secretary L. L. Astroth of Bloomington, Norman Geske of Wheeling, Charles Hillman of Hinckley, Ted Search of Chester and Robert L. Wright of Champaign. Only officials who attend the 1975 rules meetings will be eligible to be selected to work the 1975 playoff series.

Some football-playing schools will issue equipment and arrange to have players take their required physical examinations at an earlier date, but under the rules of the Association, no school may organize or practice its football team prior to the third Wednesday preceding Labor Day, nor may a school participate in an interscholastic football game or scrimmage prior to the Friday following Labor Day (Sept. 5).

Football players also must engage in a minimum of 90 minutes of actual field practice on each of 14 days (excluding Sunday) preceding the player's first interscholastic game or scrimmage.

Athletes in the other fall sports may participate in competition as early as the first day of school.

Addition of the three new girls tournament series, along with a softball tournament series scheduled to begin next spring, brings to eight the number of tournament series designated for girls conducted during the 1975-76 school year by the more than 820 secondary schools belonging to the IHSA.

Expansion of the boys golf series to the two-class system brings to five the number of athletic activities for boys where competition is divided according to school enrollment. The other activities where classification is employed are football, basketball, track & field, and wrestling. In all but football (where there are five classes), the Class A competition is for schools with enrollments of 750 or less and Class AA is for schools with enrollments of 751 or more.

Rules interpretation meetings in girls field hockey and swimming also will be conducted throughout the state. The swimming meetings will be at five sites from Sept. 3 through Sept. 11. Interpreter will be Margaret Kelso of Dolton. The meetings will be conducted at Elgin (H.S.) Sept. 11, Homewood-Flossmoor Sept. 8, Hinsdale (Central) Sept. 10, Park Ridge (Maine South) Sept. 9 and Peoria (Richwoods) Sept. 3.

The field hockey meetings will be at five sites from Sept. 8 through Sept. 11. Interpreters will be: July Kretzschmar of Elmwood Park and Helen Riley of Charleston. The meetings will be conducted at Deerfield Sept. 8, Edwardsville Sept. 9, Lombard (Glenbard East) Sept. 9, Pana Sept. 10, and Pekin Sept. 11.

Bubbles for money! What next fans?

NEW YORK (UPI) — That pop-pop-pop sound heard by baseball fans down the pennant stretch won't necessarily be coming from the bats of the Cincinnati Reds, Pittsburgh Pirates, Boston Red Sox and Oakland A's.

Perhaps out of frustration over the lack of pennant races this year, Topps Chewing Gum Inc. has drummed up yet another "race" to stimulate fan interest — a bubblegum chewing contest among the major league ball players.

And it's no sticky business either. The major league champion bubble-blower will receive a cash award of $1,000 — plus, of course, a full case of Bazooka Chewing Gum to use for his chewing pleasure the rest of his years or, more hopefully, to donate to his favorite charity serving youngsters.

Basically, the way the contest will be run is this:

Beginning later this month, active players on all 24 major league clubs will enter the bubble "blow-off" and be given five packages of gum. A time period of 15 minutes to "condition" the gum will be given and then each contestant will be given three tries at blowing the largest bubble.

Upon signal from the player, bubbles will be measured at their largest circumference by a specially-designed set of "calphers" issued by the Topps people.

Team executives, local sports writers and TV personalities will judge the individual team championships, but for the final "League Championship," a three-man judging committee which include a clergyman (why not?) and a major league umpire.

Bubbles away.

'The Jack Pardee Show' to make debut Sept. 21

WBBM-TV will present close-up coverage of the Chicago Bears on "The Jack Pardee Show," to be presented on 14 consecutive Sundays, beginning Sunday, Sept. 21, 12:00 noon-12:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

Hosted by Johnny Morris, and featuring the dynamic new coach of the Chicago Bears, Jack Pardee, the series will offer viewers a look at the Chicago Bears both on and off the playing field. It will feature highlights of the previous games of both the Bears and their opponents, with Coach Pardee pointing out the significance of key plays and giving his assessment of the opposing teams' strengths and weaknesses. The Channel 2 cameras will also zero in on the Bear players as people, focusing on their families and their lifestyles off the playing field.

"The Jack Pardee Show" will be broadcast at various times, usually immediately preceding the CBS Network's 30-minute pre-game program entitled "The NFL Today."

Harper grid candidates to report Aug. 21

Interested candidates in Harper College football are asked to report to "U" Building on Aug. 21 at 8:00 .m.

Candidates must have a physical examination that is dated after Aug. 1 and must bring their own work-out gear i.e. football shoes, T-shirt, shorts, etc.

For further information contact the Athletic Department, 397-3000 extension 466.

"We make old transformers run like new to make your electric dollar go farther."

"Before the electricity we generate gets to you, it goes through transformers. Thousands of volts go in one end and come out the other as a neat little stream of energy you can use to run your record player or heat your oven. Commonwealth Edison has thousands of these transformers in the field, working round the clock. Some have been out there for over 30 years and have gotten into pretty rough shape. My job is to get them working like new."

Jim Amos supervises the equipment reclamation program at Commonwealth Edison's Technical Center. This complex of machinery and men operates on one basic principle: don't buy new equipment if you can make old equipment work like new.

Some transformers just need a tune-up, but others need to be rebuilt from the ground up. It's a tough job. But when you consider that a new transformer could cost as much as $50,000, it's a job worth doing.

Limits sought on liquor ads, cigaret sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government master plan for improving public health Tuesday suggested curbs on liquor advertising and sale of cigarets with hightar and nicotine content.

The five-year plan for Public Health Service agencies of the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare was drafted as a guide for agencies setting spending priorities for health programs. It is not yet available to the public, but was obtained by UPI.

Among legislative options suggested for reducing alcohol abuse are lowering the alcoholic content of certain beverages, restricting advertisements for alcoholic beverages, excluding such advertising as a deductible business expense for tax purposes, and adjusting the alcohol tax rate according to alcoholic content in the beverage.

POSSIBILITIES FOR action on smoking include retrictions on the sale of high-tar and high-nicotine cigarets and a phaseout of federal tobacco price support. HEW Sec. Caspar Weinberger last week asked Congress for authority to ban the manufacture or sale of "excessively hazardous" cigarets.

The plan, which sets spending priorities for some $5 billion a year, also said the current health-care system discriminates against the poor by forcing them to rely on public clinics and emergency rooms while higher income persons can be more selective about health care.

In addition, it proposes federal subsidies for increasing the fluoridation of community and school water systems to reduce tooth decay; cites recent dramatic increases in several lesser known venereal diseases; says 30 million persons under age 65 have no health insurance or welfare aid toward meeting the cost of health care.

The second annual Forward Plan for Health covers fiscal years 1977-81. The first report last year was criticized for emphasizing an illness prevention strategy but containing few specifics.

"It is, therefore, a basic premise of the prevention strategy that much greater attention and resources must be directed at preventing the underlying causes of disease rather than at the disease itself — at controling cigaret smoking, alcohol abuse and exposures to toxic chemicals in the environment than at the diseases which they cause," the report said.

The plan cited "strong evidence" that smoking-related diseases include cancers of the lung, larynx, lip, mouth, esophagus, bladder and other urinary organs; chronic bronchitis and emphysema; heart disease, and other cardiovascular diseases.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Gout caused by too much uric acid

Could you tell me what causes gout and what to do for it? The doctor said I had gout in my feet. The balls of both feet are sore and sometimes my toes burn and seem to draw as if I had cramps in them. It is very painful.

Gout is not caused by eating rich foods and drinking. It is caused by an overproduction of uric acid by your own body.

What is uric acid? It is closely related to proteins and is a byproduct of the formation of new body cells. When you are generating that enormous number of new red blood cells, three million every second, you are also forming uric acid. It is formed in the process of manufacturing the important nucleic acid DNA in the nucleus of the cell. Anything that stimulates the breakdown of cells or stimulates their growth will increase the production of DNA.

It follows that a person on one of those fad diets that promises massive sudden weight loss may have a sudden acute attack of gout. The diet leads to breakdwon of muscle cells and release of excess quantities of uric acid.

The uric acid forms a salt (sodium urate) that can form crystals and induce a complicated process in the joints that results in red hot, painful, swollen joints. This is commonly the big toe but other joints may be involved.

Deposits of the uric acid salt in the joints lead to a form of arthritis, called simple gouty arthritis. It can lead to a slow destruction and deformity of the joints involved.

While diet is helpful in treatment of gout, it is not as important as controlling the overproduction of uric acid by your own body cells. The diet should be one, though, that gradually decreases excess obesity without any crash effort that may cause an acute attack as I mentioned.

You can eat a diet completely free of uric acid and still have high uric acid levels and gout. A purine-free diet used to be the big thing because purines (from tissue cells and particularly organ meats) are used in the formation of uric acid. However, the body can manufacture lots of uric acid on a diet completely free of purines. A pruine-free diet will only lower the uric acid level slightly. That is why medicines are used mostly today rather than trying to control the problem with diet alone.

There are medicines to block the formation of uric acid in your cells, other to help you eliminate excess uric acid through the kidneys and still others to control the acute pain of a sudden, painful gout attack.

As a woman you will be interested to know that men are much more prone to gout than women. Many women who have the high uric acid levels never develop gout. There seems to be a hereditary tendency to developing gout, and it has often afflicted the famous and the geniuses or near geniuses, so you are in good company.

Man charged with murder after beating victim dies

Frank Sherry, an unemployed laborer accused of killing one person and injuring seven others with blows from a carpenter's hammer, was formally charged with murder Tuesday.

The Sangamon County state's attorney's office, Springfield, filed the murder charge as a result of the death late Monday of Mercer Hopper, 68. Sherry earlier had been charged with eight counts of aggravated battery.

Two other victims of the attack at an apartment complex near the state Capitol remained in critical condition in St. John's Hospital.

Sherry, 25, is scheduled for arraignment Thursday provided he recovers from wrist wounds he apparently inflicted on himself in an attempt to take his own life, authorities said. He was listed in serious condition.

Police are still seeking a motive for the attack.

Radio's James Jewell dies

Veteran radio writer and director James E. Jewell died Tuesday at Northwestern Memorial Hohpital in Chicago of a heart attack. He was 69.

Jewell was associated with the Lone Ranger, Jack Armstrong and the Green Hornet and was considered the "dean of the radio adventure show."

A native of Detroit, Jewell worked at both WXYZ and WWJ radio before a stint in Hollywood. He came to Chicago in 1942 where he worked for an advertising agency and later for CBS and ABC television. At the latter station in Chicago he wrote and directed Jack Armstrong and eventually turned it into a twice weekly hour program called Armstrong of the SBI.

Use those bike gears: doctor

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you depend on bicycling to get in shape and stay there, use gears that require you to exert a good deal of pedaling effort.

The advice is from Dr. John Finkenstaedt, a cardiologist who bikes over 100 miles on weekends.

The associate director of the Life Extensive Institute in New York said if you use the easiest pedaling gear — well, you'll not get much out of biking.

Touching on the physiological value of biking, he said: "Oxygen is all important for human survival. The ability of the body to take in oxygen and utilize it depends on the condition of the oxygen system. This includes the lungs, blood cells, heart and tissues.

"The individual's fitness is determined by his maximal oxygen uptake."

BIKING MAKES you better in that department.

Finkenstaedt counsels some of America's top corporate executives whose companies sent them to Life Extension for preventive medicine checkups.

In an interview, he recommended an exercise formula for getting in shape and staying there — through the bicycle habit.

First, he suggests a slow, easy cycling period of a few minutes warm up.

This is followed by faster cycling periods for five to six minutes each. These can be broken up with intervals of slower cycling.

Increasing endurance is the key to getting in good shape and staying there.

FINKENSTAEDT said pedaling at the same rate every day will stabilize endurance. Thus, 10 miles per hour for one hour daily, will cause a leveling of endurance.

"On the other hand," he said, "if you cycle at 10 miles per hour for 30 minute and 15 miles per hour for 15 minues, your endurance will be greater than the steady 10 miles per hour speed."

The cardiologist suggested tips for following if you're planning a good-sized bike trip.

- Eat ameal at least two hours before the start of a trip. This should include carbohydrates such as fruits which contain simple sugars and some starches. The heart muscles use carbohydrates more efficiently than fats.
- Carry some carbohydrates on the trip. Fruit or candy — to provide quick energy.
- Carry a canteen of water to replace vitally needed lost fluids. If cycling 50 miles or more, it is recommended that the cyclist carry a proprietary replacement solution such as Gatorade, Accolade or something of the sort instead of fruit, candy or water.

After the bike hike avoid a hot shower.

"A hot shower immediately after strenuous exercise lowers the blood pressure and disturbs the heart rate," he said.

Something else:

"Serious cyclists should always wear a helmet," he said.

Elderly's tax bills may be confusing

Senior citizens who receive Cook County real estate tax bills this week may be "confused" because homestead exemption allowances are listed below final payment totals, Wheeling Township Assessor Marshall P. Theroux said Tuesday.

Theroux mailed letters to Wheeling Township senior citizens last week that explained the exemptions.

Final installment totals on the 1974 tax bills include homestead exemption deductions, Theroux said.

Because the total is listed below the final payment figure, "some senior citizens think they should deduct the homestead exemption from the final installment and others think they should pay only the amount listed as a homestead exemption," he said.

The second-installment total — listed as "final installment" — "is the amount due" Sept. 10, Theroux said.

WAITING ON customers is only part of working in an ice cream store, however, it is what most people consider to be the main responsibility. Filling out an order at the Hoffman Estates Baskin-Robbins are Betty Wilson (scooping up a cone) and Barbara Ladd, boh of Hoffman Estates.

Inside scoop on ice cream biz

by BARBARA LADD

Working in an ice cream store is sticky business. In fact, my shoes are still sticking to the floor after one evening in the Hoffman Estates Baskin-Robbins.

And the other ice cream dippers seemed gummed up even worse, with arms and uniforms practically hidden under the layer of spills and drips. The unspoken policy, I decided, must be, "Make the mess behind the counter before the customer makes a mess on himself."

For a one-night-only trainee, the inside "scoop" of the ice cream business is somewhat confusing. Where is each of the 31 different flavors (actually, I counted 37 that night)? What toppings are put on for the different specialties? Where are the washrags?

But confusion is all part of being new at the business, I guess. The managers, Frank and Ruth Milling, Barrington, told me that it takes about 30 hours to completely train a new employe. And they have been training people — mostly high school students — for six years.

Still, when a man came in with $2.25 and asked how much ice cream he could buy for six people, I wished the learning process was instantaneous.

Naturally, the other workers were busy at the time.

Laura, a year-and-a-half Baskin-Robbins veteran, was my guardian for most of the night. She taught me how to scoop a dip of ice cream into a cone. ("You have to scoop it all in the same direction along the edge of the tub," she patiently advised as I bent over the half-filled dipper that wouldn't get any fuller.)

She also showed me how to make malts, freezes, sundaes of all sizes, shakes and floats.

She said the worst part of the business for her is the customers. Two minutes later a "gentleman" walked into the crowded store and yelled at us for not waiting on him.

But for the most part, I found the customers friendly and understanding — and especially interesting.

For example, one couple deliberated for nearly 10 minutes on what flavor to buy for their dog. (I think they ended up with three dips of vanilla.)

One little lady ordered a Matterhorn (seven dips of ice cream floating in a sea of whipped cream and maraschino cherries). Twenty minutes later she returned to ask for a doggie bag for the leftovers.

Ice cream lovers include wide-eyed toddlers and elderly couples, people in expensive evening clothes and swimsuits.

But customers make up only part of the work.

There also is cleanup.

Whenever business is a little slow, workers scrub down the counters (the dirty part of their policy of making messes before the customers do). The machines and equipment are covered with sticky goop and sundae toppings seem always to need replenishing.

Then there are "partials." These are almost-but-not-quite empty tubs of ice cream that need to be yanked out of the freezers, scooped out and dumped into other nearly empty tubs of the same flavor.

If that was all there was to it, partials wouldn't be too bad. But unfortunately for the workers (and good for the environment) the tubs are recycled to Baskin-Robbins distributors for refilling. This means that literally hours can be spent washing the sticky, dried ice cream out of all the tubs and lids.

I decided that Rocky Road, Banana Marshmallow, and Pink Bubble Gum are most difficult to clean.

About ten o'clock the countdown began.

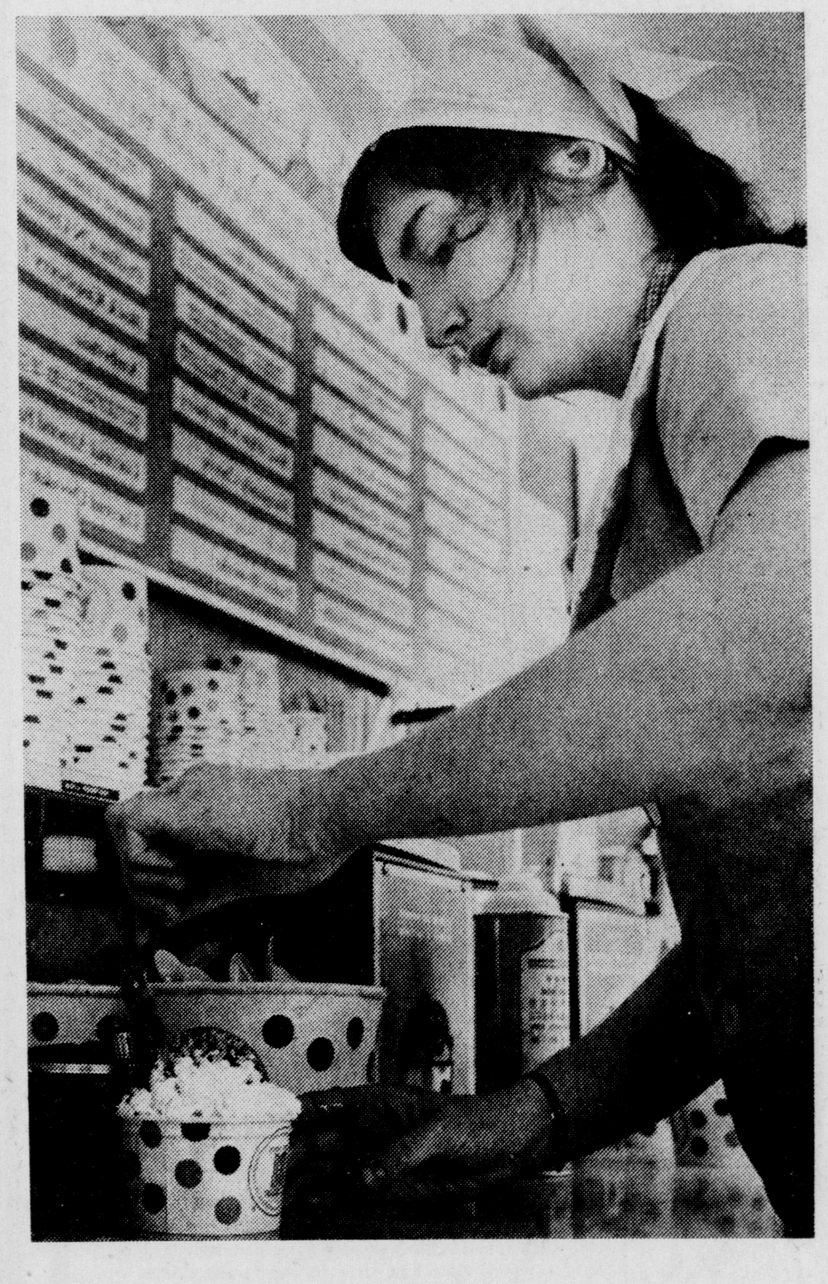
"Only one hour left," sighed Laura, who looked as tired as my feet felt. And cleaning became serious business — complete with mopping the floor and checking the stockroom.

When the magic closing hour came, the store was much more spotless than the workers and more than 200 orders had been filled. (There is absolutely no telling how much ice cream is dipped since orders varied anywhere from single-dip to triple-dip cones.)

And as each of us left for the night we concocted our own ice cream specialty to eat on the way home — a sweet prize before jumping into a shower and scrubbing off the chocolate, vanilla, strawberry, caramel, mint . . .

HERALD REPORTER Ladd's assignment while working at the ice cream store was to put finishing touches on the sundaes — a task requiring a tremendous amount of skill and concentration!

THERE IS AN art to scooping up ice cream cones, as Cindy Roth, Hoffman Estates, demonstrates. Each dip must weigh the same and must be put on the cone with enough pressure to keep the ice cream on the cone after it's held upside down. With too much pressure, the cone will break.



Women and children first

Wife wants own savings account

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

I've been married for 15 years and have two children. My husband and I are not getting along and it looks very much as though we'll be heading for the divorce courts one of these days. I am presently considering legal separation out of consideration for my children. But before I take any steps I would like to know something about my legal rights.

I've worked all of my married life, helping with household expenses and, of course, contributing toward our children's needs, etc. What I would like to know is now that the break is coming, may I have a savings account in my own name without my husband's knowledge?

My problem is this: May I put it in my maiden name or under an assumed name? If I do, what will happen when income tax time comes around? —R.J.

Dear R. J.

I detect a feeling of guilt about wanting a bank account in your own name and can't understand why. I've never known any married woman who deprived her family of anything simply because she's had her own savings account. On the contrary, she is usually kidding herself if she believes a savings account is buried treasure. Too often, she finds herself digging into it for sis' new skis, junor's fishing tackle or to get her husband out of a bad investment! It's not only legal, but wise for a woman to have her own savings account for the reasons stated above and many more that I'm sure you know about from your own experience.

• Yes, you may legally have a bank account in your maiden name. As one Ohio judge commented in a case involving a woman who had not changed her name for any purpose when she married, "It is only by custom, in English speaking countries, that a woman, upon marriage, adopts the surname of her husband in place of the surname of her father."

As I've pointed out in previous columns, a person has a right to use any name he or she chooses providing that person is not doing it to defraud another or is posing as another individual with the same name. (The concept must be difficult to accept. It is one of the most repeated questions received by this column.)

• Now, about the tax situation. I know you do not intend to avoid taxes so there's no problem in that respect. However, since you and your husband have filed joint tax returns, I don't see how you can avoid doing it again without telling him.

There are ways to hold personal and real property without anyone's knowledge and, though chancy for marital harmony, are legal.

• You might buy real estate in your own name. But it couldn't produce income and you would have to skip the available tax deductions on the property taxes. You would also have to pay taxes on the property without your husband's finding out.

• Another suggestion is to indulge yourself with a hobby, collect antiques, unusual memorabilia or coins.

• Series E. U.S. Savings bonds are another possible choice, and can be purchased in denominations from $25 to $1,000, held for the full five-year maturity and then retained for an additional 10 years holding off paying taxes until then.

My own opinion is that if you are thinking about a divorce or separation in the near future, you might prepare for it by first evaluating what you and your husband already possess, who will receive what, including the custody of the children, how much you will need to support them and yourself, how much your husband earns.

I may be wrong but it appears to me that a woman who wants a legal separation when her religion does not forbid divorce is a good candidate for marriage counseling, since apparently the supposition is that the break will not be permanent if she's thinking in terms of legal separation.

Your best bet, of course, is to be honest with your husband, at least to the extent that you tell him you'd feel a little more independent with a savings account of your own. Perhaps, depending upon his attitude about your marital situation, you may be able to lead up to the more serious consideration of separation or divorce and possibly, even, be able to discuss future money problems. After all, it is your husband who must pay for alimony and support of the children and he, too, needs to be prepared.

(Readers are invited to submit questions regarding legal problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martoccio's column is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006).

Still time for hammock reading

by KAY MARSH
(First of two parts)

"Are you booked for the season?" asks a sign in at least one public library.

Well, "the season" is just about over, but there is still time to do a little of what used to be called "hammock reading."

For most of us, light summer reading means novels. I certainly haven't read all of the latest crop, but I have read several fairly new ones recently, and thought that you might welcome a few suggestions.

Of course, "newest" is not always the best. If you haven't, for instance, read the novels by Delderfield, then they might be your very best bet.

NOT QUITE SO good, but in the same tradition, are the novels of Charles Bracelen Flood. These were first published back in the '50s, but came out in paperback last December. The woman at the Virginia bookstore where I browse and buy says that they've been very popular this summer. On her recommendation, I bought and read "Love Is A Bridge" (Pyramid Books).

It's the story of a Harvard man who loves and leaves his first wife, Susan; makes a second marriage; then comes full-circle back to Susan. These are rich, beautiful people who have, in the words of the jacket blurb, "too much — and not enough." Anyway, they make for good summer reading.

The same bookseller said that Gothic novels and mysteries are always popular with her customers. While I am not a particular fan of that genre myself, I have liked the suspense and supernatural to be found in the novels of Thomas Tryon. There's less of the latter in his latest, "Lady," than in his "The Other" and "Harvest Home," but there's the same spellbinding storytelling.

"LADY" (ALFRED A. KNOPF, 1974) is the story of a friendship between a young boy and an older woman, and the final revelation of her secret. Her "secret" (a romantic alliance with her black butler) seems unimportant today, though there is a shocker when we learn what happened to her husband. It is not, however, plot that makes this book so much as atmosphere and characters. "Lady" spans the period from the 1930s through World War II, so there's a wealth of nostalgia here for many of us. But mostly there's the fascinating and elusive Adelaide Harleigh, the "Lady" of the title.

I don't believe "Lady" is available yet in paperback, though it probably will be soon. I checked it out of the library in Bedford, Va. (And, at the risk of digressing, let me urge you to visit the library and apply for a temporary card if you're spending much vacation time in any one place. You'll find not only reading material but also a wealth of information on the place you're visiting, plus, in Bedford at least, a warm and friendly hospitality that makes you feel most welcome.)

Anyway, "Lady" has been very popular in Bedford, if you can judge by the number of dates stamped on the library's "Date Due" card in the back of the book. It's been checked in and out 20 times since November of 1974, which means it's hardly had time to need dusting.

"Something Happened" (Alfred A. Knopf, 1974) has been checked out four more times in that same period, which makes it even more popular. This, as you probably know, is the first novel by Joseph Heller since his highly acclaimed "Catch-22," published in 1961.

It's the story of 40-ish Bob Slocum, who's contending with personal, family and career problems with many of which we can identify. As the book jacket says, Slocum "once was new, valuable, eagerly waiting to grow into the good life sure to come."

As too often happens, the good life doesn't come, despite considerable material success. And tragedy does. In my opinion, this is a very depressing book. I'd suggest you save it for a more serious time.

See next week's column for more ideas on light hammock reading. Meanwhile, do "book yourself" for a bit of escape in what's left of this year's summer.

Closets full? – try a want-ad

This zucchini pleases even a vegetable-hater

The homeline
by Dorothy Ritz

As is the case in so many households, the male member of the family tries to duck, dodge and evade vegetables. How it came about I don't know, other than that his mother let him pick and choose. Point of this is that I got him to try some baked zucchini. Not only did he accept a second helping but added a third of his own.

Get some small zucchini, cut them in half lengthwise and score the surface. Sprinkle on some seasoned salt, then smear on some sour cream. Next, add a tiny sprinkling of garlic powder. Over this put a thin cover of buttered crumbs. (If you like, you can use wheat germ instead of bread crumbs.) And, finally, a top coating of grated cheddar. Bake in a baking dish in a 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes. Three helpings for a vegetable-hater?

Dear Dorothy: I've been using a yellow cotton table mat set on the breakfast table and am a little embarrassed about the coffee and tea stains. Laundering hasn't budged them. Any ideas? — Molly Jameson.

Soak them in an enzyme presoak product or oxygen bleach, using very hot water. then wash.

Dear Dorothy: Is freshly squeezed juice about the same price as reconstituted frozen orange juice?—James B.

Not exactly. Taking the set figures of 90 cents a dozen for fresh oranges and a 16-ounce can of frozen concentrate priced at 60 cents, a half-cup of the reconstituted juice would be 4 cents and a half-cup of the fresh juice 8 cents.

Dear Dorothy: What can I use to remove mildew from around the rubber gasket of my refrigerator?—Ms. Thelma Lucas.

A baking soda solution will take care of it.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Three share LWV honors

The League of Women Voters of Des Plaines is in the midst of honoring three members during July and August: Delores McCabe, Eleanor Rohrbach and the League's current president, Lorelei Weller.

Their main LWV interests are township government, election laws and local government.

All together the three have contributed 28 years of volunteer service to Des Plaines through the League. They have been active in the community through professional organizations, religious groups, Scouts and volunteer school work. Mrs. Weller also participates in the newly formed Des Plaines Presidents' Council.

Newest members of this League are Ruth Lang and Dolores Parr.

A membership social is planned for Sept. 10. Those interested may call 827-8734 or 827-8538.

Bride made wedding bands

The gold wedding bands exchanged July 12 by Debra Lynn Shaw and Thomas R. Gordon were made by the bride. Debby used knowledge gleaned from a high school art class to make the rings. The design on Tom's ring is a fingerprint of Debby's and on Debby's ring is a fingerprint of Tom's.

Both Debby, daughter of the Frank B. Shaws, Rolling Meadows, and Tom, son of the Lawrence Gordons, Palatine, are graduates of Fremd High School, Debby in 1971 and Tom in 1970.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Gordon

THE PAIR'S marriage took place at 5 p.m. in Community Church of Rolling Meadows during a candlelight, double ring service. Debby chose a hoop-skirted gown of chantilly lace with pearls trimming the bodice. A crown of petals trimmed in lace and pearls held her elbow-length veil, and she carried white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Her maids were in apricot halter gowns with jackets, and they carried white baskets with apricot roses, white pompons and baby's breath. Sheree Cavicchioni, Rolling Meadows, was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Patty, and Gaye Baldocchi, Rolling Meadows, Julie Jordan, Schaumbug, and Amy Calandruccio, Nashville, Tenn. Cheri Cunningham, 4-year-old niece of the groom from Hoffman Estates, was flower girl, and Cheri's 5-year-old brother, Chris, was ring bearer.

BEST MAN WAS Tom's brother, Ron of Kingman, Ariz., and ushers were the couple's brothers, Randy Shaw and Mark Gordon, and Thom Schultz and Gary Vogt, both of Rolling Meadows.

A reception for 200 guests was held at the Camelot in Des Plaines, after which the newlyweds honeymooned at Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri. They are now residing in Palatine. Tom is employed by Kehe Food distributors in Rolling Meadows, and Debby is a dental assistant in Arlington Heights.

Refrigerate water

Robert B. Hilbert, president of the American Water Works Association, says, "Don't run a glass of water every time you want a drink. Run a quart or a half gallon bottle of it at a time and keep it in the refrigerator. That way it will always be cool and refreshing when you want it. Most important, you won't waste water, running some off, every time you drink." (UPI)
